THREE 1966 WOODROW WILSON FELLOWS

Three La Salle seniors are among the 1,408 Woodrow Wilson Fellowship winners for 1966-67, it was announced by the Foundation Thursday (Mar. 10).

Four students were nominated by La Salle; the fourth was selected for honorable mention honors. They represent the College's largest number of winners for any given year, and raise La Salle's Woodrow Wilson Fellows total to eight since 1959.

Fellowship winners are: John A. Connelly, Zenon Kohut, and Joseph B. Pritti. Honorable mention was given to Thomas E. Perry.

Connelly, a 1961 graduate of Father Judge High School, is majoring in German and plans to attend either Princeton or Brown Universities. Kohut was graduated from Roman Catholic High in 1962 and majors in history. He hopes to attend either Columbia University, the University of Indiana or University of Wisconsin. Pritti majored in philosophy after graduating from Central High in 1962 and plans graduate studies at either Yale University or the University of Chicago.

Perry graduated from West Philadelphia Catholic High School for Boys in 1962, majors in English at La Salle, and hopes to pursue graduate studies at the University of Virginia.

Among other local and Pennsylvania colleges who had Wilson Fellows named (1966 total in parentheses) were: Bryn Mawr (6); Drexel (1); Duquesne (2); Haverford (11); Lehigh (2); University of Pennsylvania (13); Swarthmore (18); Temple (2), and Villanova(1).

Woodrow Wilson Fellows receive one academic year of graduate education with tuition and fees paid by the Foundation, plus a living costs stipend of $2,000 and allowances for dependent children. This year's grants total $5.7 million given to Fellows from some 380 colleges and universities in the U.S. and Canada. Winners represent 24 fields of study and were chosen from over 11,000 nominees. Most are majoring in English or history.
