Scholar, Historian and Educator Honored At Fall Convocation

Literary Scholar G. Harold Metz, Historian John Lukacs and Foreign Language Educator Dr. Eleanor Lien Sandstrom, were honored at La Salle University's Fall Honors Convocation on Sunday, October 22nd at 3 P.M. in the Ballroom on campus.

La Salle's Brother President Patrick Ellis, F.S.C., Ph.D., presided over the Convocation and presented Drs. Metz, Lukacs and Sandstrom with honorary doctor of humane letters degrees. Brother Patrick also honored 566 La Salle University Dean's List students at the Convocation, including 162 from the university's Evening Division.

All three honorary degree recipients were sponsored by members of La Salle's faculty. Dr. Claude Koch, professor emeritus of English, sponsored Dr. Metz, Dr. Theopolis Fair, associate professor of history, sponsored Dr. Lukacs, and Dr. Leonard Brownstein, Ph.D., professor of Spanish, sponsored Dr. Sandstrom.

Dr. Metz, a 1939 La Salle alumnus, combined a successful business career with a distinguished record of literary scholarship.

While he worked for the RCA Corporation for many years in various management positions he pursued graduate studies at the University of Pennsylvania, earning M.A. and Ph.D. degrees. In 1965 he joined AMBAC Industries as Senior Vice President, Personnel Staff. He retired in 1982.

Dr. Metz's citation said, in part, that his "life has unfolded with the range of practice and intellectual achievement in a familial and public world that ... defined the truly educated man."

In his career as scholar, Mr. Metz has published numerous articles in scholarly publications including The Library, Shakespeare Quarterly and Theatre History Studies. He is also co-editor of Supplemental Bibliography to a New Variorum Edition of Shakespeare's Richard II; and a contributor to Shakespeare and Sir Thomas More: Essays on the Play and its Shakespearean Interest.

Hungarian born Dr. Lukacs came to the United States in 1946 before the communization of his native country. He was educated in Hungary and England at Budapest and Cambridge Universities.

He has been a professor of history at Chestnut Hill College since 1947, and has served as a visiting professor at various other universities including La Salle and Princeton.

"As a teacher at Chestnut Hill College and La Salle ... he introduced three generations of students to the complexities and excitement of the study of modern European history," Dr. Lukacs' citation said in part. "He was more than a teacher. He was also a model of what a practicing scholar should be."

The historian has authored more than 200 articles and reviews in American and English historical and literary journals. He has published fourteen books, including Outgrowing Democracy: History of the United States in the Twentieth Century.

Named the Pennsylvania State Modern Language Association's 1988 "Language Educator of the Year," Dr. Sandstrom, was honored for "devoting her entire professional life as an advocate of multilingual and multicultural education in our city, state and nation." Formerly the director of foreign languages, English as a Second Language (ESOL), and bilingual education for the School District of Philadelphia, she now serves as a consultant for the School District.

"Her countless lectures, demonstrations, curriculum materials and publications in the 1960's and 70's are now recognized as important links with the present national movement for oral proficiency," her citation said. "During the mid 1960's Dr. Sandstrom was the driving force for the creation of new programs in bilingual education for Hispanic, Asian and other ethnic groups. These programs became nationally recognized models."
