LA SALLE HONORS THREE DISTINCTIVE WOMEN AT FALL CONVOCATION

La Salle University honored three distinctive women, a physician, a Naval Reserves Rear Admiral, and a local civic leader, at the Fall Honors Convocation on Sunday, October 20 in the Union Ballroom, on campus.

La Salle's Brother President Patrick Ellis, F.S.C., Ph.D., presided over the Convocation and presented each woman, Sister Anne Brooks, S.N.J.M., a doctor and Catholic nun working in a poor Mississippi Delta town; Rear Admiral Maryanne Gallagher Ibach, the first woman to be appointed to the rank of rear admiral in the history of the Naval Reserves; and Patricia Johnson Clifford, a member of the university's Board of Trustees, with an honorary doctor of humane letters degree.

During the ceremony Brother Patrick also recognized 524 La Salle Dean's List students, including 140 from the School of Continuing Studies.

Dr. Joanne Jones Barnett, assistant to the provost, sponsored Sister Anne Brooks for her honorary degree while Dr. Gloria Donnelly, chairman of La Salle's Nursing Department sponsored Rear Admiral Maryanne Gallagher Ibach and Dr. Glenda Kuhl, dean of the School of Continuing Studies sponsored Patricia Clifford.

In addition, Peter J. Filicetti, Ph.D., assistant director of the Counseling Center and Michael Kerlin, Ph.D., professor of philosophy, were recognized for 25 years of service to the university, and La Salle Spanish Professor Leonard Brownstein received the second annual Sears Roebuck Foundation Teaching Excellence and Campus Leadership Award.

This award is given to the faculty member who has made a distinct difference in the teaching climate of the college in such areas as model classroom teaching, campus leadership, pioneering teaching methodology, creative course development and/or instructional support.

Sister Anne Brooks is a doctor of osteopathic medicine and a member of the Sisters of the Holy Name of Jesus and Mary who administers to the residents of Tutwiler, Mississippi, a community of just over 1000 people, mostly black and mostly poor, with a per capita income of less than $3,000.

After earning a degree in elementary education at Barry University in Miami, she worked for 17 years as a teacher and principal at Catholic Schools in Florida. In 1973 she became a full-time medical worker and started a clinic in St. Petersburg, Fl. In 1977 she left the clinic which is still operating today.

In 1978, at the urging of her doctor and friend, who was treating her for debilitating rheumatoid arthritis, she entered the University of Michigan School of Osteopathic Medicine. She graduated in 1983 at the age of 45.

As a new doctor Sister Anne was looking for a town where she could help the most. She found Tutwiler, which had been without a doctor for many years. She took over the vacant clinic and set up a three-part staff, medical, office and clerical, and outreach ministry. She has now served this Mississippi Delta community, day and night, for seven years.

Rear Admiral Ibach, a native of Philadelphia, and a registered nurse, was honored as "a leader in the U.S. Navy, in the nursing profession, in family life and in the Archdiocese of Arlington, (Va.)."

She has served in many capacities for the U.S. Navy including 13 months on the hospital ship USS Repose off the coast of Vietnam. She also served at the Naval Hospitals in Portsmouth, N.H., and in Philadelphia, where she was head nurse in the ambulatory surgical ward caring for personnel from Vietnam.

Rear Admiral Ibach is involved in numerous professional and community organizations including the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States, American Nurses Association, Naval Reserve Association, National Association of Life Underwriters and her Church Parish Advisory Board.

She holds a bachelor of science degree in nursing from the University of Pennsylvania, and a master of arts degree in education and a certificate in gerontology nursing from George Washington University.

Patricia Johnson Clifford was honored as a woman dedicated to the support of human dignity, freedom and well being.

A graduate of Fisk University and a resident of Philadelphia, Clifford is a member of La Salle University's Board of Trustees as well as that of Temple University. She also serves on the Board of Directors of The Fund For Philadelphia, Inc. and on the National, Commonwealth and Women's Boards of the Medical College of Pennsylvania.

In addition Ms. Clifford is a member of the Coalition of 100 Black Women, Delta Sigma Theta Sorority and Fisk University Alumni Association.

"In all of these leadership capacities," her citation read in part, "Mrs. Clifford has contributed a strong and shining vision for the betterment of all peoples.... She is a gracious and forceful voice needed and sought by organizational groups who care deeply about the human mind, body and spirit."

For her volunteer service and community activism, she has received several awards including the Community Service Award from the National Council of Negro Women, Philadelphia Council, the Community Service Award from the YMCA of Germantown, and the Human Rights Award from the Philadelphia Commission on Human Relations.

Mrs. Clifford is married to Maurice C. Clifford, M.D., and has three children.
