Memo To: La Salle University Community

Re: New University Photographic Policy

As many of you know, Martha Ledger resigned as the News Bureau's photographer/staff assistant, effective May 25, to become managing editor of INSIDE magazine, a quarterly publication about Jewish lifestyles.

Instead of hiring a full-time replacement for Martha, we have decided to use free-lance photographers on a trial basis for the next fiscal year. We will continue to offer advice to all departments regarding your photographic needs and will be most happy to arrange photographic service for your events, if desired. We would appreciate as much advance notice as possible, however, in order to combine assignments and help minimize the hourly charges. If you wish to make your own arrangements for such coverage, please feel free to do so. We will be happy to recommend photographers to you.

We will no longer be billing departments directly via the PRIME network to the Business Office. You will be receiving invoices for photographic services directly from the photographer involved.

The News Bureau will continue to provide photographic coverage for events deemed newsworthy by the director or associate director. Moreover, we will continue to maintain extensive photographic files (both black & white glossies and color slides) including head and shoulder shots of all members of the faculty, administration, and staff, campus scenes, newsworthy campus events, etc. Copies of these photos will be available, as usual, on request.

If you have any questions or problems regarding photographic services, please call the News Bureau.
