La Salle University's School of Nursing Receives a $72,164 Advanced Education Nursing Traineeship Grant from the Department of Health and Human Services Health Resources & Services Administration

La Salle University's School of Nursing has received a $72,164 Advanced Education Nursing Traineeship grant from the Department of Health and Human Services Health Resources & Services Administration to help qualified students finance their education.

Students pursuing a master's degree in nursing and those in the first 12 months of study in the nurse anesthetist track are eligible to apply for the grant.

"This grant is designed to help students move through the MSN program more quickly by providing them with financial assistance," said Janice Beitz, RN, Ph.D., Graduate Program Director, and Associate Professor of Nursing at La Salle. "It is important for us to help students complete their education in a timely manner and enter the workforce as soon as they are able."

"By awarding students this grant, the Division of Nursing, HRSA, enables us to do our part in addressing the health professionals shortage that is occurring," added Beitz. "We can recruit students who would otherwise not be able to afford to attend, and we help our students take more classes and finish faster had they not received the grant."

Several factors are taken into consideration during the student selection process, such as academic standing, financial need, and diversity.

The traineeship grant also helps meet the future health needs of Americans. "Many of our students come from urban backgrounds and go back to work in urban settings which is where much of the nursing shortage is occurring," said Beitz.

La Salle's School of Nursing has been awarded the Advanced Nursing Traineeship grant for several years due to its academic reputation, healthy enrollment, quality students, and mission to continue to provide services to medically underserved areas of the community.

La Salle University's School of Nursing Receives a $48,431 Nurse Anesthetist Traineeship Grant from the Department of Health and Human Services Health Resources & Services Administration

La Salle University's School of Nursing has received a $48,431 Nurse Anesthetist Traineeship grant from the Department of Health and Human Services Health Resources & Services Administration to help qualified students finance their education. The Nurse Anesthetist program is offered in partnership with the Frank J. Tornetta School of Anesthesia at Montgomery Hospital in Norristown, PA.

Students in their last two years of study in the nurse anesthetist program are eligible to apply for the grant.

"This grant is designed to help students move through the nurse anesthetist program more quickly by providing them with financial assistance," said Janice Beitz, RN, Ph.D., Graduate Program Director, and Associate Professor of Nursing at La Salle. "The last 24 months of the anesthetist program are the most demanding in terms of time since it entails full time study. These students are in the operating room five days a week. They really can't work so this grant is really important to them."

"The grant also helps students complete their education in a timely manner and enter the workforce as soon as they are able," added Beitz.

"By awarding students this grant, the Division of Nursing, HRSA, enables us to do our part in addressing the health professionals shortage that is occurring. We can recruit students who would otherwise not be able to afford to attend, and we help our students take more classes and finish faster had they not received the grant," said Beitz.

Several factors are taken into consideration during the student selection process, such as, academic standing, financial need, and diversity.

The traineeship grant helps meet the future health needs of the nation. "Many of our students come from an urban background and go back to work in an urban setting which is where most of the nursing shortage is occurring," said Beitz.

La Salle's School of Nursing has been awarded the Nurse Anesthetist Traineeship grant for several years due to its academic reputation, increasing enrollment, quality students, and mission to continue to provide services to medically underserved areas of the community.
