La Salle University has been awarded a $183,334 Link-to-Learn Grant by the Pennsylvania Department of Education

La Salle University has been awarded an $183,334 Link-to-Learn Grant by the Pennsylvania Department of Education. The grant will be used to help strengthen La Salle's Management Information Systems (MIS) program.

As part of former Governor Ridge's nationally recognized Link-to-Learn education-technology initiative, the grant is designed to ensure that college students in all areas of study receive technology training.

"This grant will enable us to take a more holistic approach to information systems education and ultimately the entire University community will benefit from the additional resources," said Madjid Tavana, Project Director and Associate Professor of Management at La Salle University. "This is an awesome opportunity for the Management Department and our students."

"The focus of this grant is threefold," said Anne Marie Smith, Assistant Professor of Management Information Systems and Associate Project Director "First we will build a classroom equipped with the latest computer hardware and software to be used for information systems instruction. Secondly, the room will also be equipped with the latest videoconferencing technology, which will enable more of the MIS program to be accessible remotely, especially through the World Wide Web. Lastly, the grant will enable us to refine and update our curriculum with the latest technological innovations."

"This grant is going to be a tremendous help to our students and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in terms of IT work force development," added Tavana.

La Salle University's School of Nursing Has Received $35,666 Grant for Scholarships for Disadvantaged Students

The United States Department of Health and Human Services, Health Resources and Services Administration has awarded $35,666 to La Salle University's School of Nursing for assistance to students who come from economically and environmentally disadvantaged backgrounds.

"Some of our students are really struggling," said Dr. Zane Wolf, Dean of the School of Nursing at La Salle University. "This grant offers us the opportunity to support students who have dramatic financial difficulties."

Students eligible to receive the funding must be in the full-time day undergraduate program leading to the Bachelor of Science degree in Nursing.

For a school to qualify for participation in the program, it must carry out a program for recruiting, retaining and graduating students whose backgrounds are either environmentally or economically disadvantaged. To receive the 2002-2003 Scholarships for Disadvantaged Students, students from disadvantaged backgrounds must comprise at least 10 percent of the graduation class.

"We reach out to help students who are economically disadvantaged. We actively recruit these students and help them find ways to finance their education," said Wolf.

Priority is given to eligible schools based upon the proportion of under-represented minority students and the proportion of graduated students working in medically underserved communities. La Salle University meets these criteria and is excited about the opportunity to help its students with the financial demands of a college education.

"Because of the Scholarships for Disadvantaged Students grant, we will be able to relieve some of the financial burden for some very promising students," said Wolf. "With this relief, the students will be able to spend more time on academic pursuits."
