Dr. William C. Cottle, of the Boston College Graduate School of Education, will be the principal speaker during a counseling conference at La Salle College Saturday (Feb. 9), 8:30 A.M. to 1 P.M. in the College Union Building on campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Dr. Cottle will discuss "Professional Orientation of the School Counselor" in the keynote address at the opening session. The conclave is sponsored jointly by La Salle and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward T. Hughes, diocesan superintendent of schools. Msgr. Hughes and the Rev. Raymond J. Leichner, assistant superintendent of Allentown's diocesan schools, will attend.

Some 300 diocesan high school counselors and administrators are expected to attend the conference, which is conducted by the college's counseling center under the direction of Dr. Thomas N. Mc Carthy.

The Rev. John H. Walsh, director of guidance at St. James High School, Chester, will be presiding officer at the opening session, when Brother Daniel Bernies, F.S.C., president of the college, will deliver welcoming remarks prior to Dr. Cottle's talk.

Three symposiums at 10 and 11:45 A.M. will cover the "Professional Approach of the High School Counselor," "Community Resources for Student Development" and "Hearing With the Third Ear.)
A leading British economist told an audience at La Salle College Wednesday night (Jan. 23) that the "population explosion" is necessary for economic growth.

Dr. Colin Clark, Oxford University economist and population expert, addressed some 150 students and faculty members at a lecture sponsored by the college's Economics department in conjunction with La Salle's centennial year celebration. His topic was, "Rates of Economic Growth."

"Population growth," Clark asserted, "is the driving force behind economic growth. Stopping the so-called population explosion in countries like India, will also halt economic growth."

"The U.S.," he added, "instead of grumbling about the post-war baby boom, should welcome it!"

Clark assailed what he called a policy of "growthmanship" in the U.S., defining this as "the fallacy that mere increases in capital expenditures will increase economic growth." Clark claims that "increases in capital and in the labor force are interdependent" for economy gains.

"More capital does mean more production," Clark added, "but the main factors are the 'Three Es' -- education, enterprise and effort."

Clark charged that "the Soviet (Union's) economy is falling far behind the U.S., and Mr. Khruschev knows it." He added that he is "appalled by the readiness of U.S. and European economists to accept the false claims of the Soviet economists."

The medalist is being honored by La Salle's business and economics departments for his "distinguished contribution to the public welfare." Dr. James J. Henry, chairman of the finance department, will present the medal.

Dr. Bopp joined the staff of the Federal Reserve Bank here as director of research in 1941, and was vice president in charge of research when he was named president in 1958. He taught economics at the University of Missouri, his alma mater, from 1931-41.
Members of the Faculty Wives Club of La Salle College, where the liberal arts college's centennial year is the theme of all campus activities, will meet for a "Kick-Off" tea Sunday, Feb. 10 at 2 P.M. in the College Union Building on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Special guests at the tea, at which plans will be made for the club's gala President's Card Party on Friday evening, April 19, will be the honorary chairmen of the April affair to raise funds for La Salle's centenary fund drive.

Honorary chairmen and guests of honor will be Mrs. Kathryn E.
Granahan, U.S. Secretary of the Treasury; Miss Genevieve Blatt, Pennsylvania Secretary of Internal Affairs and Mrs. James H. J. Tate.

Other honorary chairmen attending will be Mrs. Anne M. Cheladen;
Mrs. John F. Connelly; Mrs. William F. Kelly; Mrs. John McShain; Mrs.
Florence Regalbuto and Mrs. Joseph Schmitz, Jr.

The honored guests will be introduced by club president Mrs.
Robert F. Lavelle, and receive testimonial bowls as gifts in tribute to their "interest in the growth of La Salle College." Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., president of the college, will give the welcoming remarks. Mrs. Lawrence G. Bowman, general chairman of the Card Party, will describe the purpose and program for the party.
Dr. Karl R. Bopp, president, Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia, will receive the fifth in a series of La Salle College centennial medals at ceremonies next Wednesday (Feb. 13) at 6 P.M. in the College Union Building on campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

The medalist is being honored by La Salle's business and economics departments for his "distinguished contribution to the public welfare." Dr. James J. Henry, chairman of the finance department, will present the medal.

Dr. Bopp joined the staff of the Federal Reserve Bank here as director of research in 1941, and was vice president in charge of research when he was named president in 1958. He taught economics at the University of Missouri, his alma mater, from 1931-41.
La Salle College hosts the seventh annual conference of the Society for the Advancement of Management this Saturday (Feb. 16), 9:30 A.M. to 4 P.M., in the College Union Building on campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

John R. Bunting, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia, will be the principal speaker at a buffet luncheon at noon. Management leaders from local firms will take part in morning workshops on the conference theme, "Management in the Electronic Age," a study of the effects of automation on management, labor and the economy.

Among the guests taking part in the afternoon panel discussion will be Donald Lasser, director of economics and research, International Electrical Workers Union; Frederick Hoar, advertising manager for electronic data processing, Radio Corporation of America; Joseph Dolan, area supervisor for the bureau of apprenticeship and training, Department of Labor, and Joseph J. Charles Collingwood, CBS newsman and anchorman for the award-winning "Eyewitness" TV series, receives the 15th annual journalism award of La Salle College's weekly student newspaper, The Collegian, at the paper's annual banquet next Monday (Feb. 25) at 6:30 P.M. in the College Union Building on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

The plaque, given annually since 1949 for "outstanding public service in the field of journalism," will be presented by Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., president of the college.

Collingwood, a veteran newsman with a wide variety of experience, began his career in journalism with United Press (International) in London in 1940. A year later, he joined the CBS News staff -- then headed by Edward R. Murrow -- and has been a stalwart of the network's news staff ever since. He is perhaps best known as Murrow's successor as host on the "Person to Person" series and, most recently, the special "A Tour of the White House With Mrs. John F. Kennedy." He has won Peabody and National Headliner's Club awards.

Past recipients of the Collegian award include Bob Considine (1951); "Red" Smith (1952); Edward R. Murrow (1954); Jim Bishop (1956); Dave Brinkley (1961), and James Reston, last year's recipient.

La Salle Centennial Year—1963
Folk singing sensation Odetta will open "Folk Singers' Week" at La Salle College, Mar. 3-8, with appearances this Sunday (Mar. 3) at 7 and 9 P.M. in the College Union lounge on campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Open to the public, the week-long fete to the American folk song is sponsored by La Salle's college union committees. An added attraction Sunday will be the premier performance of the Philadelphia Youth Jazz Band. Admission is $1 for students; adults $2.

Other highlights of the week will be concerts by Leon Bibb and Ruan MacKinnon at 12:30 and 8 P.M. Wednesday (Mar. 6), and an appearance by Susan Reed at 12:30 P.M. Friday (Mar. 8), both in the College Union theatre. The mid-day concerts are free, but tickets must be requested prior to the performance at the Union Director's office. Admission is 50¢ Wednesday night.

Odetta, who has soared to national prominence with nationwide TV appearances and concerts ranging from Carnegie Hall in New York City to the Tin Angel in San Francisco, is described as "a musical descendant of Bessie Smith and Leadbelly." Bibb appeared in the original casts of "Annie Get Your Gun" and Elia Kazan's "Fleight into Egypt," and for the past three years has pursued a concert and nightclub career. Ruan MacKinnon won acclaim for her recent work at The Second Fret, a local folk music bistro.

La Salle Centennial Year—1963
Open auditions and interviews for the company of MUSIC THEATRE '63 will be held at the La Salle College Theatre on campus, 20th st. and Olney ave., at 1:30 P.M. on three Sundays in March, the 10th, 17th, and 24th.

Managing director Dan Rodden announces a number of openings for local actors and actresses, particularly those with singing or dancing talent; qualified pit musicians, and technical and administrative personnel.

The eight-week season opens Wednesday, July 3 and will feature productions of "Finian's Rainbow," "The Fantasticks," and Fiorello! The company and staff will be salaried and for the most part be on call for daytime rehearsals and company business during the summer months.

Eight apprentices, who will be chosen from among area high school and college students, will be paid a nominal sum for their services. Applicants should contact Dan Rodden before March 15th to arrange an interview.

During the MUSIC THEATRE '62 season, first for the unique venture in college-operated stock, more than 14,000 patrons attended productions of Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Carousel" and Irving Berlin's "Annie Get Your Gun," both under Rodden's direction.

Rejoining Rodden's staff for the 1963 season will be his 1962 production associates, choreographer Jean Williams; Frank Diehl, musical director, and Sidney MacLeod, technical director. Information about subscription, theatre party and group rates will soon be released.
MUSIC THEATRE '63, La Salle College-sponsored summer season of musical comedy, announces openings for eight apprentices, who will be selected from among area high school and college students and who will be paid a nominal sum for their services.

The theatre's second season of music presentations, which will feature productions of "Finian's Rainbow," "The Fantasticks," and "Fiorello!", will open an eight-week season on July 3 under the managing direction of Dan Rodden, of the La Salle faculty.

During last summer's premier season, more than 14,000 patrons attended productions of "Carousel" and "Annie Get Your Gun."

Applicants should write to Mr. Rodden, 1214 W. Fisher ave., Phila., 41, Penna., before Mar. 15 to arrange an interview. A photograph, particulars, and references should accompany the application.
Music of Shakespeare's Time will comprise the program for a concert by the Philadelphia Baroque Quartet, sponsored by the Weber English Society of La Salle College, this Monday (Mar. 4) at 8 P.M. in the College Union theatre on campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Open to the public and admission free, the concert is part of the series of events held in conjunction with La Salle's centennial celebration.

The Quartet will be joined by harpsichordist Edna Bockstein and contralto Joyce Lundy in a program consisting of selections of songs from Shakespeare's plays and other English and continental music by the Bard's contemporaries.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

March 1, 1963

Three leading spokesmen for the conservative, liberal and radical political perspectives will take part in a roundtable discussion of "The Future of American Politics" at La Salle College next Friday (Mar. 15) at 8:30 P.M. in the College Union lounge on campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Open to the public and admission free, the "open end" discussion is sponsored by La Salle's political science department in conjunction with the college's centennial year celebration.

Dwight Macdonald, Frank S. Meyer, and Dr. David G. Smith will represent the radical, conservative and liberal points of view, respectively. Dr. John Lukacs, of La Salle's history department, will be the moderator and "provocateur" of the discussion. Dr. C. Richard Cleary, chairman of the college's political science department, will introduce the theme and participants.

Macdonald, an editor of The New Yorker magazine, has been called "the American Matthew Arnold." The literary and cultural critic is perhaps best known for his books Against the American Grain and Memoirs of A Revolutionist. In the 1940's, he wrote, edited and published Politics, one of the famous little magazines of the era.

Meyer is an editor of the conservative journal, National Review, and is credited as a leading contributor to a conservative intellectual renaissance since 1950. He is the author of A Conservative Credo and In Defense of Freedom.

Dr. Smith, a member of Swarthmore College's political science department, has contributed scholarly articles to the American Political Science Review and the Journal of Politics. He studied at Harvard, Johns Hopkins, U.C.L.A., California, and the London School of Economics.
Dr. James F. Anderson, professor of philosophy at Villanova University, will receive the sixth in a series of La Salle College centennial medals at ceremonies this Thursday (Mar. 7) at 5:30 P.M. in the College Union Building on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

The medalist is being honored by the college's philosophy department for his "many contributions to scholarship in Scholastic Philosophy." Dr. E. Russell Naughton, chairman of the department, will present the medal.

Dr. Anderson, who joined the Villanova staff in 1959, has written, edited or translated five books on Scholastic Philosophy, the most recent An Introduction to the Metaphysics of St. Thomas in 1953. He has also taught at Loyola (Chicago), Notre Dame, and St. Anselm's College (N.H.). He earned his bachelor's degree at the University of Virginia, and master's and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Toronto. Dr. Anderson and his family live in Wayne, Penna.
La Salle College next Monday (Mar. 18) opens its Charter Week celebration with a Centennial Civic Dinner at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel at 7 P.M. in the main ballroom.

The festive week (Mar. 17-21) will be proclaimed La Salle College Week in Philadelphia by Mayor James H. J. Tate this Wednesday (Mar. 13) at 11:30 A.M. at City Hall. City Council and Chamber of Commerce resolutions will also honor the 100th anniversary of the Christian Brothers-conducted college.

Some 1000 area civic, business and industrial leaders will attend the dinner commemorating La Salle's 100th birthday. Among the guests of honor will be the Most Rev. John J. Kroll, D.D., Archbishop of Philadelphia; special assistant to the president David L. Lawrence; Charles Beck, president of Philco Corp; Mayor Tate, and City Council president Paul D'Ortona.

A special honors convocation will mark the college's Charter Day on Wednesday (Mar. 20) at 3:30 P.M. in the College Union building on campus. Gov. William W. Scranton will speak and be among the honorary degree recipients.

Archbishop Kroll will be the celebrant at a Solemn Pontifical Mass which will climax the celebration Sunday (Mar. 24) at 12:15 P.M. in the Cathedral of Sts. Peter and Paul, 18th st. and the Parkway. After the Mass, the alumni association will install a commemorative plaque at St. Michael's Parish, 1419 N. Second st., the original location of the college.

La Salle was a small academy at the Second st. address when the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania granted a charter Mar. 20, 1863. Today, more than 5,000 day and evening students attend the liberal arts college.
"An Evening With Basil Rathbone" will be presented by La Salle College as part of the college's Charter Week celebration next Thursday and Friday (Mar. 21-22) in the College Union theatre on campus, 20th st. and Olney ave. Two performances are scheduled, 8 P.M. Thursday and 12:30 P.M. Friday. Admission is free.

A limited number of tickets are available to the public by contacting the College Union Director's office.

Rathbone will offer dramatic presentations from the works of Shakespeare, Poe, Houseman and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. He made famous the latter's Sherlock Holmes in a score of movies over the past three decades.

Other honorary degree recipients will be Mayor Tate; Charles E. Beck, president of Philco Corp; U.S. Treasurer Kathryn Granahan; Joseph T. Kelley, secretary-treasurer of Philadelphia AFL-CIO; Dr. Stephen Kuttner, canon lawyer of Catholic University and Most Rev. Bishop Gerald V. McDevitt, vicar general of the Philadelphia archdiocese, all doctor of laws. Sir Hugh Taylor, president of Woodrow Wilson Foundation, will receive a doctor of science degree.

A Solemn Pontifical Mass, at which Archbishop Krol will be the celebrant, climaxes the celebration next Sunday (Mar. 24) at 12:15 P.M. in the Cathedral of Sts. Peter and Paul, 18th and the Parkway.
President Kennedy added his best wishes to the host of congratulations given La Salle College Monday night (Mar. 18) at a centennial civic dinner opening the college's 100th anniversary celebration.

The President's 206-word message was read by his special assistant, ex-Gov. David L. Lawrence, at the centennial fete attended by some 1000 civic, business and religious leaders in the main ballroom of the Bellevue Stratford Hotel.

Archbishop John J. Krol, D.D., and Mayor James H. J. Tate were among the dignitaries on the dais. Brother Daniel Bernard, F.S.C., president of the college, was the principal speaker.

Archbishop Krol delivered greetings from Pope John XXIII, who conveyed his "cordial felicitations" and "Paternal Apostolic Benediction."

"As an Honorary Alumnus of La Salle College," said President Kennedy, who received a doctor of laws degree from La Salle in 1958, "I am indeed happy to join with all of its friends and graduates in saluting the College on its Centennial.

"La Salle's remarkable growth over the past century," the President continued, "exemplifies the resolve to serve the community and the nation that has characterized our private liberal arts colleges and made them a vital part of our system of higher education.

"The path of service has not been easy," the President added, "nor will it be in the future. The demand for higher education increases with each passing day, as does the importance of educated men in American life. What La Salle has accomplished in its first century is meaningful to all Americans, because it is representative of the manner in which our private colleges have met the challenge of time."

The President praised the college's centennial motto, Virtue and Knowledge: Foundation for the Future, for showing "proper reverence for these enduring qualities which truly must become the 'foundation for the future'."

Congratulatory messages were also received from Gov. William W. Scranton; Archbishop Krol; Gov. Richard J. Hughes, New Jersey, and Gov. Elbert N. Carvel, Delaware; Brother Nicet Joseph, F.S.C., superior general of the Christian Brothers, the teaching order which conducts the college; Brother G. Henry, F.S.C., U.S. superior general, and the City Council.

Gov. Scranton lauded La Salle's contributions "to the cultural and educational advancement of our Commonwealth..." Councilman Robert B. Winkleman, Jr., class of 1924, read a City Council resolution saluting the centennial.

Brother Daniel, in the main address, called the centennial celebration "...our tribute to those who have gone before us....those unselfish pioneers who labored against odds that would have daunted any but men of simple and fearless faith."

"The dominant note of this great occasion," he added, "is confident and optimistic hope. The present, like the past, is replete with challenge and opportunity."

Dr. Francis J. Braceland, Yale University psychiatrist who in 1926 was the only graduate of the college that now has over 5000 students, was the toastmaster.

Other honored guests at the head table were Msgrs. Thomas F. McNally and Charles B. McGinley; industrialist John F. Connelly and Joseph Schmitz, Jr., bank president William F. Kelly, and attorney Joseph B. Quinn.
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

After the Mass, La Salle's alumni association will install a commemorative plaque at St. Michael's Parish, 1445 N. Second st., the site of the college when chartered by the Commonwealth in 1863. James I. Gillespie, alumni president, and the Rev. Edwin L. Gallagher, pastor of the church, will officiate.

Assistant priest at the Mass will be the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Newton T. Miller, LaSalle College High graduate in 1915 and pastor of St. Gregory's Church. Deacons of honor will be the Rt. Rev. Msgrs. Edward T. Hughes, superintendent of archdiocesan schools, and Charles B. Mc Ginley, pastor Holy Child Church.

The Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, president of Villanova University and Very Rev. William F. Maloney, S.J., president of St. Joseph's College, will be deacon and sub-deacon, respectively.

The sermon will be delivered by the Most Rev. Gerald V. McDevitt, D.D., auxiliary bishop of Philadelphia. Rev. James F. Connelly, secretary to the Archbishop, will be the master of ceremonies.

St. Charles Borromeo seminarians, among them La Salle alumni and former students, will be the minor ministers and ushers. The choir will be composed of Christian Brothers from the Scholsticate in Elkins Park.

La Salle Centennial Year—1963
Today (Mar. 20) is La Salle College's 100th birthday.

The Christian Brothers-conducted college had its modest beginning 100 years ago today, when the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania granted a charter to what was then a small academy at 1419 N. Second St.

La Salle starts its second century with a physical plant valued at $15 million and more than 5,000 day and evening students.

Gov. William W. Scranton will speak and be among the honorary degree recipients at an honors convocation marking La Salle's 100th Charter Day at 3:30 P.M. today (Mar. 20) in the College Union Theatre on the campus.

Also receiving doctor of laws degrees are Charles E. Beck, president of Philco Corp.; U.S. Treasurer Kathryn Granahan; Mayor James H. J. Tate; Most Rev. Bishop Gerald V. McDevitt, D.D., vicar general of the Philadelphia archdiocese; Dr. Stephen Kuttner, canon lawyer of Catholic University, and Joseph T. Kelly, secretary-treasurer of Phila. AFL-CIO. Sir Hugh Taylor, president of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, will receive an honorary doctor of science degree.

LA SALLE NAMES BOB WALTERS AS NEW BASKETBALL COACH

Robert W. (Bob) Walters, the captain of La Salle College's first post-season tournament team, has been named head basketball coach of the Explorers, it was announced Monday (April 8) by La Salle College president, Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C.

Walters replaces Donald W. (Dudey) Moore, who resigned April 1 after five years at the helm of the Explorers.

Conditions of his contract were undisclosed.

Walters, who graduated from La Salle in 1947, led the Explorers in scoring for all four years of his varsity career, from 1943 to 1947. A guard he captained the team in his junior and senior years, sparking the Explorers to a runnerup position in the Middle Atlantic Conference Tournament the latter campaign.

Walters was named to the All City team three times, and received All State and honorable mention All American recognition in his senior year.

He thus becomes the first alumnus to assume the head coaching job at La Salle since the 1948-49 season when Charles McGlone guided the team.

During the 1952-53 season, he was assistant coach to Ken Loeffler, at La Salle.

Before that, he was head coach at Philadelphia's Roman Catholic High School for five seasons.

A resident of Meadowbrook, Pa., Walters and his wife Frances have four children: Susan, 17; Robert W., Jr., 13; William, 12; and Christopher, 10.

A leading conservative spokesman Friday (Apr. 26) asserted that government managing of news "has always existed, but it seems to have become a mania for the present administration."

William F. Buckley, Jr., founder and editor of the conservative journal National Review, gave his remarks to an overflow audience in La Salle College's student union theatre. His talk, entitled "Freedom and the Welfare State," was one in a series of lectures and concerts marking the college's centennial celebration.

Buckley also leveled criticism at taxpayers "in New York and other states" for their "contradictory instructions to legislators" to vote against increased state school taxes, while urging federal aid from Washington.

He attributed the paradox to acceptance of "the liberal illusion of the myth of a spontaneously generated dollar in Washington." For each $3 in federal school aid, he asserted, only $1 would return to the state of New York.

Buckley also assailed what he called "the radically altered relationship between the state and the individual. The federal government," he added has become some sort of magic word."

"The poor people, not the rich, bear the overhead of our welfare state," he continued. "The (public) welfare will be encouraged if the individual is free of inordinate governmental interferences."

"The principal task of conservatives," Buckley concluded, "is to confront liberalism with reality...(and) act prudently with some effort to affect events and recapture the vision of personal freedom."
"Christians must unite or eventually perish," a prominent Catholic theologian said Friday night (Apr. 26) at La Salle College.

"Christian impact on the secular world is steadily diminishing," he asserted, citing "the growing populations in non-Christian nations" and that "the situation of Christians is no longer privileged; in one-half of the world it is underprivileged."

The result, the Woodstock College (Md.) theologian concluded, is that one day the myriad of Christian denominations will have to unite for survival.

"Religions (alluding to membership growth) say 'We've got it good.' Well, the railroads thought that once, too," Father Weigel asserted.

Father Weigel claimed "there is no valid excuse for the division and multiplicity (of religions)," but added that the day when all churches are united "can not yet be seen."

"The goal of the Vatican Council," he said, "is not organic unity, but to meet (non-Catholics) as brothers... (and) take into account the mind and position of our separated brethren to heal the wounds of the past."

Catholic doctrine can not be changed, he stated, but Catholics must "reformulate our dicta that has caused offense in the past... (and) created needless misunderstanding." It must "be so expressed that it is clearer to the men of our time," he added.

Father Weigel also said:
- The start of the Ecumenical movement "around 1910" was "basically
More than 400 parents of La Salle College students are expected to attend the centennial President's Reception next Sunday (May 19) from 4 to 7 P.M. in the College Union ballroom on campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Awards for "distinguished teaching" were presented Wednesday night (May 15) to four La Salle College professors at the college's annual Founder's Day dinner, at the Four Chef's Restaurant, Hellerman and Sackett sts.

Some 700 seniors and their families attended the traditional dinner, which marks the feast day of St. John Baptist de La Salle, founder of the Christian Brothers, the teaching order which conducts the college.

Thirty-three academic prizes were presented to seniors for "outstanding academic achievement" by Brother Gavin Paul, F.S.C., vice president for student affairs, and twenty-seven seniors were given membership in Alpha Epsilon, the alumni association's honor society.

The faculty awards, made possible by a $3000 grant from the Christian R. and Mary F. Lindback Foundation, were given to the Rev. Roger Balducelli, O.S.F.S., assistant professor of theology; Dr. Richard P. Boudreau, 246 W. Upsal st., associate professor of French; Claude F. Koch, 128 W. Highland ave., associate professor of English and a novelist, and Brother E. Patrick, F.S.C., associate professor and department chairman of English.

Awards of $1000 each were presented to Father Balducelli, Dr. Boudreau, and Koch. A medal was given to Brother Patrick, who as a Christian Brother may not retain a stipend.

Father Balducelli, who earned a degree in scriptural studies at the Biblical Institute in Rome, joined the La Salle staff in 1960. Koch has published two novels, Island Interlude and Light in Silence, and his latest work, A Matter of Family, will be published this fall. Brother Patrick is also editor of La Salle's literary magazine, Four Quarters, and has been department
La Salle College is one of ten U.S. colleges and universities which will share $250,000 in grants by the Ford Motor Company Fund, the Fund announced this week.

Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., president of La-Salle, said that the $25,000 grant to the college in an unrestricted award.

The Ford Motor Company Fund is a non-profit corporation, which aims to assist educational, scientific and charitable organizations. It is not affiliated with the Ford Foundation.
La Salle College has purchased the Olney Garden Apartments, 5711-29 Wister st., Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., president of the college announced this week.

The college plans to convert the two-story structure into a student dormitory, Brother Daniel said. The purchase price was given as $235,000.

The building contains 28 two-bedroom apartments, a one-bedroom unit and two commercial spaces. It is located one block west of the college, on the northeast corner of the intersection of Wister and Chew sts.

Planned to house approximately 100 students, the apartments will be La Salle's sixth residence hall. The fifth, a new, twin-unit structure, was opened last fall. Some 450 residence students now live on the campus.
Mrs. Harry J. Gibbons, mother of ten children whose husband teaches in La Salle College's evening division, will receive a "Ph.T." degree with "magna cum laude" honors at the 10th annual ceremonies next Sunday, (June 2) at 7 P.M. in the College Union Theatre on campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Wives of 238 day and evening division seniors will be presented the "Ph.T. -- Putting Him Through -- degrees," recognizing their assistance in hubby's pursuit of a bachelor's degree, at the special 'commencement' exercise. Husbands receive their degrees Tuesday, June 4.

The Gibbons' and their 10 children, six boys and four girls ranging in age from Paul, four months, to John, 16, live at 1325 New York ave., Cape May, N.J. Mr. Gibbons, who is an accounting professor at La Salle, teaches in Wildwood during the daylight hours.

Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., president of the college, will confer the 'degrees', and Brother G. Paul, F.S.C., will give the main address. Brother F. Emery, F.S.C., evening division dean, will present the candidates.
A record 700 graduates will receive degrees at La Salle College's 100th commencement exercise Tuesday, June 4 at 5 P.M. in Convention Hall.

Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther (Ret.), president of the American Red Cross, will be the principal speaker and receive an honorary doctor of laws degree. The Red Cross is also observing its centennial celebration this year.

Brother Charles Henry, F.S.C., assistant superior general of the Brothers of the Christian Schools, the teaching order which conducts La Salle and West Catholic High Schools in addition to the college, will receive an honorary doctor of pedagogy degree and be the presiding officer.

Other honorary degree recipients will be Herve Alfand, French Ambassador to the U.S., and Charles M. Grace, vice president of McDonnell and Co., both of whom will receive doctor of laws degrees.

The deans of the respective schools, arts and science, business and evening, will present the candidates for degrees in course to Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., president of the college, who will also confer the honorary degrees.

The John J. Finley Memorial Award, recently established by La Salle's alumni association to honor the late Councilman Finley (class '24), will be presented by James I. Gillespie, president of the association.

The alumni association will also honor 13 alumni with centennial medals for "distinguished service" in fields represented by departments within the college.

Twenty-eight graduates will receive Army commissions at swearing-in ceremonies conducted by Col. Jack C. Maldonado, professor of military science at La Salle. Seven others will receive Marine Corps commissions.

The Baccalaureate Mass will be celebrated at 10 A.M. commencement day at the Immaculate Conception Church, Ardleigh & Price sts., in Germantown. The Rev. Edwin L. Gallagher, pastor of St. Michael's Church, 1445 N. Second

John J. Ryan, 39, will receive a bachelor's degree at La Salle College's 100th commencement at Convention Hall next Tuesday (June 4), but he never heard a word his professors said.

And the teachers don't mind a bit. Ryan has been totally deaf since age 13.

Ryan, his wife Elizabeth, and their five children, live at 1609 Spring Ave, Jenkintown. He will receive a bachelor of science degree in electronic-physics. Mrs. Ryan will be among 238 seniors' wives who will receive "Ph.T. — Putting Him Through -- degrees" at special ceremonies on the campus this Sunday (June 2).

Ryan earned a "B" average in La Salle's evening school during his seven and one-half year pursuit of a degree, which was twice interrupted by operations for a leg ailment, once in 1958 and again last summer.

"There was some struggle involved," he says matter-of-factly, "but it was more than worth it. You can't get any place without a degree." Ryan's idea of "any place" is become an engineer. He is now a technician at Minneapolis Honeywell, where he started as a shop worker after graduating from Olney High School 20 years ago (1943).

But he admits he "was very discouraged and ready to quit" college, when he returned to studies in Sept. 1959 after recuperating from his first operation.
"This was the only time he did poorly (in school)," Mrs. Ryan adds. "His academic average would have been much higher than it is."

Ryan established a record of academic excellence even in high school, shortly after he learned lip-reading. At Olney High, he was graduated 13th in a class of some 400. Most of his education, he asserts, has come from books.

In the interim, he took courses at Temple at night and made several unsuccessful applications to enroll at another area college, before starting at La Salle in 1955.

Mrs. Ryan, an accomplished amateur painter, has had her hands more than full raising their four girls -- Denise, 11, Stacie, 9, Marie, 8, and Lizbeth, 5, and son, Jack, while daddy worked days and studied nights and weekends.

She has also helped supplement the family income, first in a family antique stand venture in New Hope during and after the Honeywell strike in 1959, and for the past four years as a portrait artist at John Wanamaker's, Jenkintown. Rent from a boarder in their three-story, frame house has also helped financially.

Mrs. Ryan agrees with her husband on the value of his education: "of course, it was worth it," she exclaims. "I'd like him to go after a master's degree, if he wants it." She has studied art at night at Fleisher Memorial.

Both Jack and Elizabeth Ryan "hope to make up for some lost time;" he in "getting to know my children again" after years of work plus studies, she in the hope that "one of these days I'm going to attend day art classes."
"Finian's Rainbow" and "Fiorello," two of the happiest musicals of the American stage, will be presented this summer by La Salle College's MUSIC THEATRE '63, July 3 thru August 25.

"Rainbow" bows Wednesday evening, July 3, when the MUSIC THEATRE opens its second season in the air conditioned College Union theatre on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave. More than 14,000 patrons visited the local campus last summer, the premier season of the area's first college-sponsored professional summer stock.

"Rainbow" plays each Tuesday through Sunday night until July 28. "Fiorello" opens a similar four-week run Friday, August 3 through the 25th. Curtain is at 8:30 P.M. except Saturday, when performances are given at 6 and 9:30 P.M. No performance on Monday.

Managing director Dan Rodden's staff will be the successful 1962 combination of choreographer Jean Williams, technical director Sidney MacLeod and musical director Frank Diehl.

Rodden announced two new subscription plans, which are effective before July 1; thereafter, all seats are $3. The new plans are:

PLAN A - Minimum of 8 tickets (4 each show) at $2 each. Times and dates of performances must be indicated. Tickets may be exchanged on 48 hours notice.

PLAN B - Minimum of 2 tickets (1 each show) at $2.50 each. Will receive coupons exchangeable for seats on date to be later specified by patron.

Rodden has voiced optimism concerning the number of theatre parties already scheduled for the new season. Among them are Chestnut Hill College Alumnae; Bell Telephone Co. Pioneer Club; Hallahan High School Alumnae, and the Knights of Columbus Flaherty Council.

Subscribers and those wishing to arrange a theatre party should write MUSIC THEATRE '63, La Salle College, Phila. 41, Penna. Subscriptions should be accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelopes and checks payable to MUSIC THEATRE '63.

The Atomic Energy Commission has awarded La Salle College a $6800 grant for nuclear materials, it was announced by Dr. John Penny, chairman of the college's biology department.

The grant will be used for the purchase of radioactive isotopes for use in radiobiology laboratories in La Salle's new Science Center, 18th st. and Olney ave.

Dr. Penny said the materials would be available for laboratory studies during the spring semester of 1964.
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Three new courses and three special programs highlight La Salle College's 1963 day and evening summer sessions, it was announced by Brother F. Lewis, F.S.C., director.

Registration for the first session will be held Friday, June 21 between 9:30 A.M. and 1 P.M. and 6:30 to 8 P.M., and Saturday, June 22 from 9:30 A.M. to noon. Day and evening classes start Monday, June 24. First session classes continue through July 26. Second session is July 29 to August 30.

Some 60 courses in 17 areas of study will be offered, among them three new courses: "Differential and Integral Calculus," "History of the U.S. and Pennsylvania," and "Marriage and the Family." The evening school offers courses in economics, English, philosophy, and theology.

Special programs to be offered this summer include a Pre-Seminary Latin Institute and a Reading Development Program, both starting June 24, and a Workshop in Teaching Elementary School Science, which opens July 1 and continues through August 2. Some 65 nuns from diocesan elementary schools will take part in the Science Workshop, in which attention will be given to reading and literature in science, and the new emphases in elementary school science.

The summer sessions, excepting the Science Workshop, is open to men from other institutions who have their school's approval and meet the academic requirements of La Salle College.
La Salle College's MUSIC THEATRE '63 will present "Fiorello!" as its second offering of the season, opening Friday, August 2 at 8:30 P.M. in the College Union Theatre on campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

"Finian's Rainbow," initial presentation of the unique, college-sponsored music theatre's second season, concluded a four-week run Sunday, July 28. The production received hearty critical and audience acclaim.

"Fiorello," a Broadway hit musical in 1959, will continue in the air conditioned theatre through August 25. Performances are at 8:30 P.M. Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Sunday, and at 6 and 9:30 Saturday. All seats are reserved at $3 each.

Like "Rainbow," the show is staged and directed by Dan Rodden, managing director. Jean Williams is choreographer and Frank Diehl is musical director. Sets are by Ray Pentzell and costumes by Gerard Leahy.

Starring are Pat Cronin, Robert Bolsover, Dennis Cunningham, and Tom Rosica, all featured performers in "Rainbow." Cronin appears in the title role, portraying the late Fiorello LaGuardia, Mayor of New York from 1934 to 1945. Bolsover plays Morris, Cunningham is Neil, and Rosica is seen as Ben Marino. Judy McMurdo and Marge Megary have featured roles.

George Abbott and Jerome Weidman wrote the book, and Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick the words and music for the musical, which includes among its memorable tunes "'Til Tomorrow," "Gentleman Jimmy," and the now-classic "Politics and Poker" number. The N.Y. Times called it "...an ideal monument to our beloved Little Flower."

Some 6,000 archdiocesan elementary school students will be pulling for their teachers to come through with flying colors on final exams at La-Salle College next Thursday (Aug. 1).

The teachers (students, in this case) are 63 sisters who teach at parochial elementary schools, and are now enrolled in a new Sisters' Science Institute sponsored jointly by La Salle and the archdiocesan school system.

The nuns are the first "coeds" to attend classes at La Salle in the 100 year history of the college.

The four-week Institute, the pilot program in a three-year sequence, aims to prepare the sisters for a new elementary school science program to be initiated by the archdiocese this fall on the fourth to eighth grade level.

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward T. Hughes, superintendent of archdiocesan schools, calls the Institute "an outstanding example of the cooperation of La Salle College with the Archdiocese."

The first year of the Institute is a review of the basic areas of science, such as the atom and elementary chemistry. The second year will consist of meteorology and astronomy, and the third summer course biology and oceanography.

The sisters attend lectures Monday through Friday from 9:30 to 11:30 A.M., and laboratory sessions each Tuesday and Thursday afternoon.

La Salle Centennial Year—1963
The Institute is being conducted by three Christian Brothers, the teaching order which conducts the college. The teachers' teachers are Brothers F. Nicholas, F.S.C., director of the Institute, E. Richard, F.S.C., lecturer and lab instructor, and E. Victor, F.S.C., lab instructor. Two college credits will be given by La Salle's education department for each summer Institute.

"It's fun to teach teachers, Brother Nicholas says of his students. All of the usual problems of student motivation and discipline are absent. In addition, they have a keen awareness of the need for scientific information. They are an ideal group to teach."

Brother F. Lewis, F.S.C., director of summer sessions at La Salle and one of the originators of the Institute, says "It was felt we (La Salle) should make further contributions to training teachers for the archdiocese and, with this in mind, the Superintendent of Schools (Msgr. Hughes) was approached for ideas on summer workshops. It was agreed that the greatest need was in the area of elementary school science."

The publicity-shy sisters refuse to be quoted, but call the course "very interesting" and "enjoyable." One added "I like it better on the other (teacher's) side of the desk, and another discounted any adjustment to being a student with the remark, "We are always learning anyway; we learn from the children we teach."

Six 1963 La Salle College graduates will start graduate studies this fall under National Defense Education Act fellowships, the college has announced.

The recipients are among some 1400 fellowship winners, who will pursue graduate degrees at universities and colleges across the nation. The grants, which in most cases are three years in duration, provide $2000 the first and second years and $2400 the third year, plus $400 annually for each dependent.

Philadelphians among the La Salle winners, their respective subjects and graduate schools are Francis W. White, 6040 N. American st., Soviet Union, Eastern Europe and Communism, at University of Notre Dame; Joseph W. Wetzel, 2706 S. Peach Terrace, French, University of Kansas; Joseph M. Downey, 600 E. Devereaux ave., French, University of Massachusetts, and Charles E. Quirus, 233 W. Sheldon st., English, at Duquesne University.

Others are James F. Dalton, 17 W. County Line, Hatboro (Pa.), Economics, at Boston College, and Robert W. Zercher, 321 Cherry st., Columbia (Pa.), University of Kansas.

La Salle graduates this June also received Danforth and Woodrow Wilson Foundation awards. Peter F. Lang, 226 E. Ashdale st., La Salle third Danforth winner in as many years, will study Mathematics at the University of Chicago, and Gerhard C. Gerhardi, 228 E. Roosevelt Blvd., will study under a Wilson grant at Yale University.

Brother Gerald Joseph, F.S.C., has been appointed principal of West Philadelphia Catholic High School for Boys.

He succeeds Brother Galdrick John, F.S.C., member of the high school staff since 1940 and principal since 1954. Brother John will join the staff of La Salle College in the fall semester. Both schools are conducted by the Christian Brothers, a Roman Catholic teaching order.

Brother Joseph, a native of Washington, D.C., entered the Christian Brothers in 1948. He earned his bachelor's and master's degrees from La Salle College in 1952 and 1953, respectively, and taught physics, chemistry and mathematics at West Catholic from 1953 until 1962. He returns to West Catholic from St. John's High School in Washington, where he was assistant principal.

"The Fantasticks," now in its fourth hit year off-Broadway, will be presented by La Salle College's MUSIC THEATRE '63, opening a six-night run Tuesday, Aug. 27. "Fiorello!" concludes a four-week run this Sunday, Aug. 25.

"Fantasticks," the college-sponsored theatre's third and final offering of the season, will continue through Sunday, Sept. 1 in the air conditioned theatre on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave. Performances are at 8:30 P.M. Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Sunday, and at 6 and 9:30 P.M. Saturday. All seats are reserved at $3 each.

The show is staged and directed by Dan Rodden, managing director, and Jean Williams is choreographer. Frank Diehl is musical director and Sidney MacLeod is technical director.

In starring roles are MUSIC THEATRE '63 favorites Bob Bolsover (The Narrator), Dennis Cunningham (Girl's Father), and Pat Cronin (Boy's Father). Jim Hockin (The Boy) and Susan Feldman (The Girl) have featured roles in the nine-member cast.

Tom Jones wrote the words and Harvey Schmidt the music for the play, which is based upon Edmund Rostand's "Les Romanesques." It is described as "a parable about love." Among its memorable numbers are "Try to Remember," "Soon It's Gonna Rain," "Never Say 'No'" and "The Rape Ballet."
A national choir, comprised of outstanding musicians from across the nation, will take part in the 1963 Liturgical Week here Aug. 19-22.

The choir will hold a special, rehearsal-workshop Aug. 17-19 at La Salle College, 20th st. and Olney ave., where the ensemble will practice during its stay here. In addition to practice sessions, seminars and discussion will be held for choir members, who will hear guest speakers discuss the relationship of sacred music to the liturgy.

More than 100 choir members from 16 states and the District of Columbia have indicated they will be members of the choir, which is expected to number some 300 voices.

C. Alexander Peloquin, musicologist, composer and director of the Peloquin Chorale of Providence, R.I., will be director of the choral group.

Peloquin has announced that the choir's participation has been broadened this year to include two afternoon sessions devoted to study of church music, and that he is composing a Mass in English to be presented at the evening session Wednesday, Aug. 21.
Seven theatre parties will be held in August at La­Salle College's MUSIC THEATRE '63, which is presenting "Fiorello!" each Tuesday through Sunday evening until Aug. 25 in the air conditioned theatre on campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

The following groups have scheduled parties: Aug. 7, La Salle Guild; 10, Christian Brothers House of Studies; 16, Knights of Columbus Flaherty Council; 17, Presentation Parish Women's Society; 19, Dominican Retreat House; 21, Catholic Activities Club, and St. Martin's Parish Knights of Columbus Auxiliary.

La Salle College hosts a record 3000 undergraduates and their families at the third annual Parents' Day activities, 2-7 P.M. this Sunday (Sept. 8), in the College Union Building on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., president of the college, will extend welcome greetings to the students and parents at 2 P.M. in the College Union Lounge.

Campus tours, piano recitals at 4 P.M., refreshments, and a feature film are also included in the day's activities. The recitals by Edna Bockstein, Charles White, and George Isajiw will include works by Chopin, Debussy, Liszt and Khachaturian, among others. "The Red Balloon," a prize-winning film, will be shown at 7 P.M.
A record enrollment of some 5,500 day and evening students are expected to begin studies at La Salle College this month, when the college opens its 101st academic year.

La Salle's evening division, inaugurated in 1946, expects a new mark of some 2,500 students when the evening college opens its 17th academic year Monday, Sept. 9.

The day school anticipates a record 3,000 students, among them 750 freshmen, to register Sept. 9-13 on the campus, where day classes resume Monday, Sept. 16. The third annual Parents' Day program Sunday Sept. 8 opens day school activities, and a special Freshman Orientation Program and Retreat is scheduled for the new students next week (Sept. 9-13).

Major innovations on the La Salle campus as the college starts its second century in higher education are a newly-acquired residence hall (formerly Olney Gardens Apartments) adjacent to the campus at 5711-29 Wister st., seven new courses, and 33 new faculty members.

The new residence hall, a two-story structure purchased last May, will house some 100 additional out-of-town students. La Salle's sixth dormitory, it raises the college's resident student total to 600.

New courses added to the curriculum for the fall term are: Astronomy; Art Appreciation; Music Appreciation; Physical Biochemistry; Introduction to Visual Aids, Analytics and Calculus, and The City and Social Change.

La Salle Centennial Year—1963
Appointment of two La Salle College administrators, including a new dean, and six faculty promotions were announced by Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., president of the college.

Brother G. John, F.S.C., for the past nine years principal of West Philadelphia Catholic High School for Boys, was named Dean of Men, and Brother E. James, F.S.C., was appointed College Representative for Special Affairs.

The new deanship in the college's Student Personnel Administration branch will include student discipline in the day school, student activities in day and evening division, and counseling and admissions in the evening school.

Brother James, formerly Provincial of the Baltimore District of the Christian Brothers and most recently Assistant Treasurer of the college, joins La Salle public relations department staff.

Brother Daniel also announced six faculty promotions, New assistant professors and their respective subjects are Sidney J. MacLeod, English; James F. Schrotz, Modern Languages, and John A. Smith, psychology. Named associate professor are Dr. Domenico A. Di Marco, classics, Rev. John Otto, philosophy, and Dr. Ivan L. Rudnytsky, history.
Francis P. Brennan, La Salle College senior of 5717 N. Camac Street has been elected vice president for external affairs of the National Federation of Catholic College Students, at the group's annual congress held in Minneapolis, Minn.

Brennan, a pre-law major at La Salle, in his new post will represent the NFCCS to the U.S. National Youth Council, the World University Service and other national and international student and professional organizations.

The NFCCS, which has members from some 150 colleges and universities, aims to promote thought and action on major current issues. It is an official arm of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, supported by the Catholic Bishops of the U.S.
Mayor James H. J. Tate will address the students and faculty of La Salle College this Friday (Sept. 20) at 12:30 PM in the College Union theater on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave. The public is invited to attend.

Mayor Tate's campaign talk will be followed by a similar address by his mayorality election opponent, James T. Mc Dermott, on Wednesday, Oct. 2.
Germantown Hospital and La Salle College will hold a joint centennial dinner at 7:30 P.M. this Monday (Sept. 23) at the hospital, E. Penn and Wister sts., in the main dining room.

The hospital and college, neighbors in East Germantown since La Salle occupied its present campus in 1929, are celebrating their 100th anniversaries this year. The dinner marks the start of "Germantown Hospital Week" (Sept. 23-30) in Philadelphia.

Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., president of La Salle, will present a citation honoring the hospital for its "outstanding contributions to the health and welfare of the people of Philadelphia." William T. Hord, president of the hospital's board of managers, will accept the citation.

Speakers at the dinner, in addition to Brother Daniel and Mr. Hord, will be Melville A. Stein, treasurer of the hospital's board of managers, and Joseph Farrell, hospital managing director.

Germantown Dispensary and Hospital was founded in 1863 as a 12-bed hospital at 5348 Germantown ave. Today, it accommodates some 315 patients at its current site, which was opened in 1869. Its centennial year marks the start of the third phase of a modernization program begun in 1959.

La Salle's modest beginning came in March, 1863, when the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania granted a charter to the small academy then located at 1419 N. Second st. After outgrowing two later locations in center city, the college moved to the Olney section of the city in 1929. La Salle's enrollment has skyrocketed to more than 5,500 in 1963, a 90 percent increase since 1946.
La Salle College will host a two-day Federal Careers Conference, sponsored by the Civil Service Commission and the college's Placement Bureau, on Oct. 7 and 8 in the College Union Building on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Over 20 federal agencies will send representatives to the conclave, the first of its kind to be held at a Philadelphia college or university. Hours of the program will be noon to 8 P.M. Monday (Oct. 7) and 9 A.M. to 4 P.M. Tuesday (Oct. 8). No appointments are necessary.

Guidance counselors and selected students from 73 high schools in the Philadelphia area have been invited to attend the conference, in addition to students from other local colleges and universities.

Federal representatives will outline career opportunities, training programs and benefits of pursuing Federal Service employment in such varied fields as accounting, the biological sciences, space research (NASA) and many types of summer employment.

L. Thomas Reifsteck, 152 Pageant lane, Levittown, N.J., director of La Salle's placement bureau, is in charge of arrangements for the conference. Some 1800 Federal Service positions are open annually to qualified college graduates, Reifsteck said.
La Salle College's alumni association will hold its annual Stag Reunion next Friday at 8:30 P.M. in the College Union Building on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Highlights of the reunion include a judo demonstration by the Central YMCA Judo Club, films of the 1961 Green Bay Packers professional football season, and door prizes.

Football films will be shown at 8:30 P.M. in the College Union theatre, and refreshments will be available starting at 9 P.M. in the lounge. Charles A. Agnew, Jr., is chairman of the 1963 Reunion Committee.

Tickets are $3 each, including all refreshments, and may be obtained by alumni by contacting the Alumni Office, La Salle College, Phila. 41, Penna.

Navy Captain William R. Anderson, commanding officer of the USS Nautilus on its historic voyage under the arctic icecap in 1959, will address the students and faculty of La Salle College this Friday (Oct. 18) at 12:30 P.M. in the College Union theatre on campus, 20th st, and Olney ave.

Open to the public, Captain Anderson's talk is one in the annual series of concerts and lectures sponsored by La Salle. He will discuss the pioneer undersea trip and its subsequent military results.

Now President Kennedy's consultant on a National Service Program, Captain Anderson was graduated from the Naval Academy and commissioned an Ensign in 1942. During World War Two, he served in the Pacific on submarine combat patrols. He was on the staff of the Naval Reactors Branch of the Atomic Energy Commission in 1956-57, before commanding the Nautilus from 1957 to 1960.
Anthony J. Celebrezze, U.S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, will give the principal address and receive an honorary Doctor of Laws degree at La Salle College's centennial honors convocation Sunday, Oct. 27 at 3 P.M. in the College Union Theatre on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

The traditional occasion for presentation of honor students to the deans, the convocation is the concluding academic event in the college's centennial celebration.

Also speaking and receiving a Doctor of Letters degree will be Dr. Frank C. Baxter, professor emeritus of English at the University of Southern California and TV educator (Bell Telephone Science Series), who once taught at La Salle.

Honorary Doctor of Pedagogy degrees will be given to Dr. Millard E. Gladfelter, the Very Rev. William F. Maloney, S.J., and Sister Mary Gregory, C.R.S.M., the presidents of Temple University and St. Joseph's and Gwynedd-Mercy Colleges, respectively, Joseph B. Quinn, legal advisor to LaSalle's Board of Managers, will receive an honorary Doctor of Laws degree.

More than 100 delegates from colleges and universities in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware are expected to attend the convocation, which will be followed by a reception and dinner.

Sponsors for the degree recipients will be Brother F. Azariss, F.S.C., chairman of La Salle's Education Department (Secretary Celebrezze); Dr. Roland Holroyd, past chairman and professor of Biology at La Salle (Dr. Baxter); ( More )
Dr. Joseph F. Flubacher, chairman of La Salle’s Economics Department (Dr. Rev. Gladfelter); Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., president of Villanova University (Father Maloney); Sister Catherine Frances, S.S.J., president of Chestnut Hill College (Sister Gregory), and Joseph Schmitz, Jr., of La Salle’s Board of Managers (Quinn). Father Klekotka and Sister Frances are honorary alumni of La Salle.

Secretary Celebrezze was serving an unprecedented fifth term as Mayor of Cleveland (O.) when he was appointed to the Cabinet post by President Kennedy on July 31, 1962. He is the first Cabinet member to receive an honorary degree from La Salle.

Dr. Baxter, as a colleague of Dr. Holroyd, first taught the college’s pre-medical Mammalian Anatomy course in 1921-22, when La Salle was located at Broad and Stiles sts. He has received seven "Emmy" awards for his education programs on television.

Dr. Gladfelter joined the Temple University staff in 1930 and served as a Vice President (1941-59) and Provost (1946-59) before being named President in 1959. Father Maloney was appointed the 22nd president of St. Joseph’s in June, 1962, after posts as Vice President for Medical Center Affairs at Georgetown University (1959-62) and as Provincial Superior of the Maryland Province of the Jesuit Order for six years. Sister Gregory was principal of Mater Misericordiae Academy and was the first academic dean of Gwynedd-Mercy. Quinn is a past president of the Catholic Philopatrian Institute and the City’s Commission on Higher Education.
A leading Catholic psychologist has chastised some Catholics for the "unfortunate image of man Catholics sometimes present."

The Rev. James E. Royce, S.J., professor of Psychology at Seattle University, gave his remarks at the 17th annual meeting of the American Catholic Psychological Association held at La Salle College Thursday (Aug. 29). He delivered the principal address to some 150 delegates in the College Union Theatre on campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

"When they enter into any dialogue with non-Catholic psychologists," Father Royce asserted, "Catholics are often saddled with an unfair burden because of a distorted concept of man...(which is) largely the product of 19th century philosophy manuals and naive catechism instruction, an image which is not that of Catholic tradition at its best."

He added that "the catechism teachers and authors of these scholastic manuals" have resulted in a "dualism, a seeming incompatibility between the spiritual and the material, between religion and science."

He cited classroom surveys as "evidence that we imbibe in early years a false dichotomy which our fellow (non-Catholic) members of A.P.A. deride in sometimes contemptuous terms...."

Father Royce, an authority on the philosophical implications of scientific psychology, added that other problems for the Catholic psychologist are "old instinct theories," the concept of free choice, and the definition of man as a rational animal.

Catholic psychologists, he added, "definitely do carry a burden of real differences in our concept of man, and this burden we bear proudly. A belief in the supernatural, in the workings of divine grace and the sacraments, in Man's redemption and destiny for the Beatific Vision — all these are beyond the data or hypotheses of scientific psychology. Yet they are by no means irrelevant to

Stan Kenton, a jazz legend in his own time, brings his 22 piece orchestra to the La Salle College campus this Friday (Oct. 25) from 9 P.M. to 1 A.M. in the College Union ballroom on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Open to college-age young adults, the combined dance and concert is sponsored by La Salle junior class. Tickets are available for $1 in the College Union lobby prior to the dance, and $1.50 at the door.

Kenton, whose rise to prominence as a "progressive jazz" pioneer began 23 years ago, has won nearly every jazz award possible and now ranks with such modern music immortals as Duke Ellington and Count Basie. In the last decade, however, Kenton has advance the perimeters of jazz even further, extending the works of modern "classical" composers such as Debussy, Schonberg, Milhaud, Hindemith and Stravinsky.

"Alumni" of the Kenton Orchestra comprise a "Who's Who" of modern music, among them composers Pete Rugolo, Gerry Mulligan and Shorty Rogers, musicians Maynard Ferguson, Kai Winding, Art Pepper, Vico Musso and Ernie Royal, and vocalists Anita O'Day, June Christy and Chris Connors.

His visit to La Salle follows by only six days a full-scale Rittenhouse Opera Company production of "La Boheme" on the campus Saturday, Oct. 19.

Mother M. Benedict, M.D., provincial of the American Province of the Medical Mission Sisters, will receive the 23rd annual Signum Fidei Medal of the La Salle College Alumni Association at the annual Communion Dinner next Friday (Nov. 1) at 7:30 P.M. in the College Union Building on the campus, 20th st and Olney ave. Solemn High Mass will be celebrated in the College Chapel at 6:30.

Mother Benedict will be the second woman to receive the medal, which is given annually for "distinguished achievement in the advancement of Christian principles." Mrs. Edward V. Morrell, benefactress of the Indian and Negro Missions, was the medalist in 1945. James L. Gillespie, president of the Association, will present the medal. John P. Ryan, '49, is toastmaster.

A native Philadelphian, Mother Benedict attended Hallahan High School and was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1959. She earned her M.D. degree from Women's Medical College in 1946 and served her internship at Misericordia Hospital. She was named Provincial in 1957 and reappointed in 1962.

In 1948, she pioneered a tiny hospital in the jungles of East Pakistan, St. Michael's in Mymensingh, the largest and most heavily populated district in the country. In five years, she performed some 5,000 operations, many of the patients journeying up to 200 miles for surgery -- often with one Sister as anesthetist and two native Bengali nurses assisting. In 1952, she established a new hospital in Dacca, capital of East Pakistan. She was honored for her work with a Fellowship in the International College of Surgeons (FICS) in 1955.

As Provincial, Mother Benedict directs the efforts of some 500 Sisters -- doctors, nurses, pharmacists, dieticians and physiotherapists -- from the Congo to South Vietnam.
Dr. Eugenio Florit, poet and professor of Spanish at Barnard College, will receive the tenth in a series of La Salle College centennial medals next Wednesday (Oct. 30) at 12:30 P.M. in the College Union theatre on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Dr. Florit will be honored by the college's Modern Languages Department for his "distinguished achievements in the field of Christian writing, teaching and research." Dr. John A. Guichard, professor of French and chairman of La Salle's Modern Languages Department, will present the medal.

Dr. Florit, perhaps best known as editor of the works of the Spanish Nobel Prize poet Juan Ramon Jimenez, has been lauded as one of the outstanding poets from contemporary Latin America. A graduate of the University of Havana, Dr. Florit joined the Barnard staff in 1941 and was named professor of Spanish in 1945.

Previous recipients of the medal, which will be given for the last times in November (Sciences) and December (History), included the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward T. Hughes, superintendent of Philadelphia's Archdiocesan Schools; Dr. Karl Bopp, president of the City's Federal Reserve Bank; Eugene Ormandy, conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and Frank Sheed, author and publisher.

The October medal will be presented as part of Modern Language Week on the campus Oct. 28 to Nov. 3. Among the special events scheduled are a "United Nations Dance" (Oct. 31) and a concert by the University of Pennsylvania Symphonic Band (Nov. 3).
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Dr. Rene Dubos, author and research biologist of the Rockefeller Institute, will receive a La Salle College centennial medal and deliver a Centenary Lecture next Thursday (Nov. 7) in the College Union Building on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Dr. Dubos will be honored by the college's Biology Department for his "reflective and illuminating appraisal of the import of science on Man and his society." The medal, the 11th in a series of 12 given to leaders in fields representing various fields of study, will be presented by Dr. John S. Penny, chairman of La Salle's Biology Department, at a 6 P.M. dinner.

Dr. Dubos' lecture on "The Humanness of Science" will be given at 8 P.M. in the College Union theatre. It is open to the public.

The medalist is a former Fabian Professor of Comparative Pathology and Professor of Tropical Medicine at Harvard University's Medical School. He is a member of the National Academy of Science and the National Research Council, and among his many honors are the Phillips Award of the American College of Physicians. His most recent book is The Dreams of Reason: Science and Utopias.

Previous recipients of the medal, which will be given for the last time in December by the History Department, include the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward T. Hughes, superintendent of Philadelphia Archdiocesan Schools; Karl Bopp, president of Philadelphia's Federal Reserve Bank; Eugene Ormandy, conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and Frank Sheed, author and publisher.
U.S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Anthony J. Celebrezze said Sunday (Oct. 27) that "real equality of opportunity is not possible today without the benefit of an adequate formal education."

Secretary Celebrezze gave his remarks at La Salle College's centennial honours convocation, where he was principal speaker and received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree. Fifty-one delegates from other schools attended.

Other honorary degree recipients were Dr. Frank C. Baxter, noted TV educator and former La Salle professor, a Doctor of Letters degree, and Doctor of Pedagogy degrees to Dr. Millard E. Gladfelter, the Very Rev. William F. Maloney, S.J., and Sister Mary Gregory, C.R.S.M., the presidents of Temple University, St. Joseph's College, and Gwynedd-Mercy College, respectively. Joseph B. Quinn, legal advisor to La Salle's Board of Managers, received a Doctor of Laws degree at the final academic event in La Salle's centennial celebration.

"When access to education is denied any American because of his race," Secretary Celebrezze said, "this is more than an affront to justice and a waste of human potential; it is a denial to the individual of personal freedom."

"We must come to think of education," he added, "as not alone the right of the individual or as the means of relating man to job, but as an economic necessity in a society that must grow to continue to be free."

"American colleges," he concluded, "bear an increasingly heavy responsibility for our national growth and for the strengthening of freedom."
Some 30 Eastern Colleges will participate in the first annual La Salle College Invitational Debate Tournament this Friday and Saturday (Nov. 1 and 2) in the College Union Building on campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Five rounds of varsity debate will be held on the topic: "Resolved: The Federal Government Should Provide an Opportunity For Higher Education to all Qualified High School Graduates."

Trophies will be awarded to the three highest-ranking four-man teams and to the six highest-ranking speakers—three affirmative and three negative. Host La Salle College debaters will be eligible for the individual awards only.

Participating Colleges include Amherst, Middlebury, The U. S. Naval Academy, Columbia, Seton Hall and Rutgers Universities, Carnegie Institute, the University of Maryland, and others.

Among the local schools competing are Temple, Villanova, St. Joseph's, University of Pennsylvania, and Holy Family.
La Salle College will host the second annual Archdiocesan Elementary School Teachers Conference next Saturday (Nov. 9), 8:30 A.M. to 1:15 P.M. in the College Union Theatre on campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Some 450 grade school teachers and principals are expected to attend the conference, which has as its theme "Understanding Student Behavior." It is sponsored jointly by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward T. Hughes, Archdiocesan Superintendent of Schools, and the college's Psychology Department.

Msgr. Hughes will preside and Dr. Alexander A. Schneiders, professor of Psychology at Boston College's Graduate School of Education, will give the keynote address at the 9 A.M. general session. Dr. Schneiders will discuss, "Changing Patterns of Human Development in the World Today."

Highlights of the meeting will be two symposiums, "The Changing Character of the Child's World" at 10:30 A.M., and "The Child in Transition" at noon. Participants in the first symposium will be Dr. Helen Cheyney Bailey, Associate Superintendent of Philadelphia Public Schools, the Rev. William J. Finley, assistant pastor of Most Precious Blood Parish, and Walter F. Zenner, of Chestnut Hill College's Sociology Department. Dr. John J. Rooney, chairman of La Salle's Psychology Department, is chairman of the meeting.

Dr. Eugene J. Albrecht, chairman of Villanova University's Psychology Department, will chair the second symposium. Panelists will be Philip S. Backus, M.D., director of Fitzgerald-Nancy Hospital's Department of Child Psychology, Sister Helen de Sales, chairman of Chestnut Hill College's Psychology Department, and Alice Tuohy O'Shea, mother of four children.
Ferenc Nagy, former Prime Minister of Hungary, will address the students and faculty of La Salle College this Friday (Nov. 8) at 12:30 P.M. in the College Union Theatre on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Open to the public, Nagy's talk is part of the college's annual series of concerts and lectures. He will discuss the current status of the Cold War.

Nagy, who was the last democratic premier of Hungary in 1946-47, was forced by the Communists to resign in return for his son, Laszlo, who had been abducted. Nagy served in a variety of positions in post-War Hungary, among them Minister of Reconstruction, president of the Independent Smallholder's Party; Speaker of the National Assembly, and Chairman of the National Supreme Council. He is not related to former Communist Premier Imre Nagy.
G. Mennen Williams, Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs, will deliver the last in a series of Centennial Lectures sponsored by La Salle College this Monday (Nov. 18) in the College Union Theatre on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

A limited number of tickets are available to the public. Williams will discuss the role and current condition of Africa's developing nations. The lecture was previously scheduled for Nov. 19.

Williams had served six terms as Governor of Michigan when he was appointed to his present post by President Kennedy on Feb. 1, 1961. Since then, he has visited virtually every area in Africa.

As Assistant Secretary of State, Williams also serves as Employment Policy Officer in the State Department and is responsible for President Kennedy's Executive Order concerning Equal Employment Opportunity.

Williams entered public service in 1936, when he joined the Social Security Board in Washington. He later served as Michigan's Assistant Attorney General and as an assistant to the U.S. Attorney General. As Governor of Michigan, he served the greatest number of consecutive terms of any governor in American history. He and his wife have two daughters and a son.
The Brothers of the Christian Schools will hold their tenth annual Fall Festival Card Party this Saturday (Nov. 16) from 1 to 5 P.M. in the La Salle College Field House on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Open to the public, the proceeds of the Festival will again be directed toward the Brothers' two new houses of study at the Scholasticate at 915 Spring Ave. in Elkins Park. Admission is $1, which includes eligibility for some $4000 in door prizes.

A Roman Catholic teaching order, the Brothers in the Philadelphia area conduct La Salle College and La Salle High School, West Catholic High School for Boys, St. Francis Vocational (Eddington), and St. Gabriel's Hall (Phoenixville).
An assistant pastor of a North Philadelphia parish told an archdiocesan education conference Saturday (Nov. 11) that the Negro's quest for civil rights is an opportunity for Catholic education "to wipe away the white man's past sins."

The Rev. William J. Finley, assistant pastor of Most Precious Blood Parish in which the population is some 95% Negro, gave his remarks in a panel discussion during an Archdiocesan Elementary Teachers Conference held at LaSalle College. Some 400 nuns, teachers and principals of parish schools, attended the conference sponsored jointly by the archdiocese and La Salle's psychology department. Dr. Alexander A. Schneider, professor of Psychology in Boston College's Graduate School of Education, gave the keynote address.

Parishes in predominately Negro neighborhoods are difficult assignments, Father Finley said, "...not because most of the people there have a brown face instead of a white one, but rather because in these neighborhoods we have a culturally underprivileged and socially abused people."

"We must remember," he added, "that the Negro is not an inferior person because he is a Negro. If there is any baseness about his character in general, it's because he lacks refinement, for the privilege of a decent education has only recently been his. We must give him an education for total living."

"How can a child kept awake all night by drinking, quarreling parents be expected to have a fruitful day in school?" Father Finley asked, describing living conditions in the neighborhood, where there are "three-story homes in which six individual families are existing. Each (family) contains about five persons (seven) including under half-years, and of course sharing the bath..."

La Salle College will climax its 100th anniversary celebration with a gala Centennial Ball this Saturday (Nov. 23), from 9 P.M. to 1 A.M., in Convention Hall, 34th and Convention ave.

Some 3,000 students, alumni, faculty and friends of La Salle are expected to attend the social extravaganza, which is part of a Centennial Weekend that marks the official conclusion of the college's celebration.

Richard Maltby's Orchestra will provide the music and the Four Freshmen, a vocal group, will entertain at the formal dress affair, which is sponsored by the La Salle student body.

Dorothy Watkinson, Cabrini College junior who was named "Queen of the Social Season" at La Salle this fall, will reign as the "Centennial Ball Queen." Brother E. James, F.S.C., La Salle's Representative for Special Affairs, is chairman of the Ball, and James L. Cavanaugh, president of Student Council, is the acting chairman.

The mammoth Hall will be transformed into a beautiful ballroom for the Ball, with a Centennial motif prevailing in the decorations. Two giant fountains, 11 feet high and 15 feet long, will adorn the center of the dance floor, while the band stand and balconies will have a 100th birthday decor.

La Salle, founded as a small academy at 1419 N. Second st. in 1863, has sponsored a host of special events commemorating the Centennial, since the celebration began in September, 1962. Among them were performing arts programs starring Dame Judith Anderson, Basil Rathbone and Hal Holbrook; concerts varying from Susan Starr to Stan Kenton's Orchestra, and a variety of noted speakers.

The Board of Directors of La Salle College's Endowment Foundation this Sunday (Dec. 8) will host a reception from 4 to 7 P.M. in the College Union Ballroom on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Six Centennial Medals will be presented at the reception, which will be attended by members of La Salle's Century Club, alumni who have given $100 or more to the college's Centenary Fund Drive.

The medals, which will be given for "outstanding contributions to the advancement of La Salle College during its first century," will be awarded to former Governor David L. Lawrence, general chairman of the Centenary Drive; Brother D. John, F.S.C., provincial of the Baltimore District of the Christian Brothers; Brother E. Francis, F.S.C., principal of La Salle College High School; Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., president of the college; and to two former presidents of La Salle, Brother E. Anselm, F.S.C., and Brother G. Paul, F.S.C.

Randolph E. Wise, City Commissioner of Public Welfare, is president of the Endowment Foundation, which was incorporated in 1946.
Count Basie and his band will appear for a dance and concert at La Salle College next Tuesday (Dec. 19) from 8 to 12 P.M. in the College Union
Ballroom on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Open to college-age young adults, the combined dance and concert is sponsored by the College Union Committees at La Salle. Prior to the event, tickets are available for $1.50 single and $2.50 per couple. At the door, prices will be $2 and $3.50.

William "Count" Basie, who has played the piano since his childhood in Red Bank, N.J., began his legendary career in jazz with the Walter Page
"Blue Devils, and in 1935 he took over the Benny Moten band. He brought the band into Chicago and to New York in 1936, and soon thereafter became internationally famous through recordings and personal appearances.

Among the jazz immortals who are Basie "alumni" are the late Lester
Young; Buck Clayton; Jo Jones; Herschel Evans; Harry "Sweets" Edison; Don Byas;
Illinois Jacquet; Jay Jay Johnson; blues singer Jimmy Rushing, and arrangers
Eddie Durham, Neal Hefti and Ernie Wilkins.
