La Salle College's evening division will offer a special in-service course in "The Principles of Economics" designed for teachers in Philadelphia's archdiocesan high schools during the 1968 spring semester.

The course will deal primarily with topics in the economics portion of the archdiocesan school system's syllabus for its National Problems course, according to Brother Emery Mollenhauer, F.S.C., Ph.D., dean of the evening college.

Dr. Joseph F. Flubacher, professor of economics at La Salle, will conduct the course, which will convene each Monday from 3:30 to 5:10 P.M. starting February 5 and concluding May 27.

The course will be offered at the undergraduate level and two semester hours of credit may be earned. However, applicants may also take the course on an "audit" basis, involving no examinations and no credits.

Among the topics for course lectures are: Money and Banking in American Capitalism; Background and Analytical Tools of Employment Theory; Business Cycles - Unemployment and Inflation; Facts of American Capitalism; Capitalism, Socialism and Soviet Economy, and The Underdeveloped Countries-Special Problems in Economic Growth.
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

January 12, 1968

Ralph W. Howard, Director

The coed enrollment at La Salle, an all-male college until its evening division admitted women last year, is expected to reach some 15% of the evening student body this spring.

Brother Emery Mollenhauer, F.S.C., Ph.D., evening dean, offered the estimate as the evening college prepared for what is anticipated to be its largest enrollment in history.

La Salle's all-male day college will commence spring semester classes Monday, Jan. 29 with an enrollment of more than 3200 students.

The evening division, the first evening college to be accredited by the Commonwealth to grant degrees after its founding in 1946, expects some 1400 new students to enlarge total enrollment to over 3300 for the spring semester. Final date for spring semester applications is Jan. 19. Registration will be held Jan. 24, 25, 29, and 30. Classes resume Jan. 31.

Several new courses will be offered by both the day and evening schools. Among them are new evening courses in European History, 100-1500; Child and Adolescent Psychology; Criminology, and a new in-service course in the Principles of Economics.

New day division course offerings are Galactic Structure; Meteorology; Music of the Classical Period; Contemporary Music; Soviet Russian Literature; Milton; Scientific German Prose; Non-Western Political Systems; Phenomenology and Existentialism, and Counseling Theories and Principles for Teachers.
La Salle College has adopted a limited pass-fail course option for all La Salle students effective this September.

The experimental one-year program will apply only to students enrolled in freely elective courses, according to Brother Daniel Burke, F.S.C., Ph.D., vice president for academic affairs.

There will be no restrictions placed upon participation and the option will be open to all students regardless of academic standing, Brother Burke said. Neither pass or fail grades will affect the student's academic record.

Similar plans, which are usually initiated to de-emphasize the importance of grades and diminish reluctance to take courses in unfamiliar subject areas, have recently been instituted at several colleges and universities, among them Yale, Brown, Lafayette and the City College of New York.

"While grades are intended as a measure rather than a goal," Brother Burke stated, "it is clear than often this system is counter-productive, with the pursuit of grades interfering with the pursuit of learning."

Professors will not necessarily know which students have chosen the option and will continue to mark on an A-D basis, Brother Burke said. The grades will then be altered to a pass-fail status by the registrar, he added.

Floyd McKissick, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), will address the students and faculty of La Salle College at 12:30 P.M. this Wednesday (Jan. 31) in the College Union Theatre on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

The black power advocate will discuss, "New Directions in the Civil Rights Movement" in the talk, which is part of La Salle's continuing concert and lecture series held throughout each academic year. John F. McNelis, executive director of La Salle urban studies center, will introduce McKissick.

McKissick, a graduate of the University of North Carolina Law School, was elected to his present CORE post in 1963. He had previously given up a successful law practice in Durham, N.C., to lead many of the "freedom ride" campaigns in the South during the early 1960's.

Spiraling costs will cause La Salle College to increase its tuition in 1968, it was announced Monday (Jan. 29) by Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., Ph.D., president of the college.

Tuition will be raised to $1350 for arts and business students and $1450 for science program students in La Salle's day division. Current costs are $1150 and $1250, respectively. Evening college tuition, now at $27 per credit hour, will be increased to $30. All increases are effective in September, 1968. La Salle last raised day school tuition in September, 1967.

"It is unnecessary," Brother Daniel wrote in a letter to the college's 6,500 day and evening students, "to mention the daily fact of inflation to the typical American family. What may not be known is that an even more rapid spiral of increasing costs has now seriously begun to affect private institutions of higher learning like La Salle.

"La Salle is moving steadily forward to higher quality education," he continued. "Progress in the near future is going to "The problem of flaming cities and riots depends on whether the black man will ultimately be included as a participant in the Constitution of the country," a black power advocate told a La Salle College audience Wednesday (Jan. 31).

Floyd McKissick, national chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), gave his remarks to an overflow audience of more than 1,400 La Salle students and faculty in the College Union Building on the campus. The talk was part of La Salle's continuing concert and lecture series held throughout each academic year.

"Black people are no longer going to be relegated to the depths of our society," McKissick said. "White people will have to wake-up and see the positive aspects of the black power movement. Black power is pretty much the last clear chance to solve our problems."

"This country is heading for genocide if the white man doesn't wake-up," McKissick contended. "The white man is in one hell of a mess. He's fighting for his entire capitalistic system, and we're going to have one hell of an explosion if he doesn't wake-up."

A question from the largely sympathetic audience asked if McKissick anticipated racial violence this summer. He replied by asking, "What has been done since last summer? If anything, conditions in the big cities are worse. White people seem to have decided they're just concerned with controlling black people, not helping them."

"The Mayor of Philadelphia, compared with your chief of police (Rizzo), is certainly trying to do something," he added. "But jobs and housing aren't the only answer, and neither is education. The real need is for education of white people. Black people need training for jobs, but it's the racists who need education, not putting band-aids on dikes."

Five La Salle College students, one from the evening college, are among the 1,124 seniors designated by the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Foundation as "among the best college teacher prospects in the nation."

The designates, plus three La Salle seniors who received honorable mention, represent the largest number of La Salle students ever chosen for the honor.

In the Foundation's Region Four, which includes all colleges and universities in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, only Princeton, Swarthmore, Bryn Mawr and the University of Pennsylvania had as many or more winners than La Salle.

Selection of the evening division student, which the Foundation calls "rare, but not unheard of," is believed to be the first for a Philadelphia college or university. Vincent R. Kling, Jr., of 5323 Magnolia st., is the evening student awardee. He is an English major.

Other La Salle winners and their major subjects are (Philadelphia unless otherwise stated): Thomas J. Smith, 7801 Dungan rd., English; William M. Sullivan, Green Hill Apts., Merion, philosophy; Richard Tiedeken, 1630 Worrell st., English, and Thomas P. Witt, 830 Chislett st., Pittsburgh, history.

The Foundation this year began a new program through which graduate school deans are notified of the designates', names with the Foundation's recommendation that all "are worthy of financial support in graduate school." Previously, with funds from the Ford Foundation totaling some $52 million, the Wilson Foundation made direct grants to some 1000 U.S. and Canadian students. This year, according to Wilson Foundation President Sir Hugh Taylor, the foundation's role is "to identify for graduate departments those students who in our view have the best potential for college teaching."

This year's recipients represent some 309 colleges and universities and were selected from among more than 11,682 students who had been nominated by their college professors.

Kling, 25, is an employee of the Xerox Corporation during the day. He is a 1960 graduate of Roman Catholic High School and an Army veteran (1961-63), who served in Germany. Upon completing his five year's of evening studies this summer, he plans graduate work at either Princeton or Hunter College.

Smith is a 1964 graduate of Northeast High School and plans graduate studies at Princeton or the University of Pennsylvania. Sullivan is a 1963 alumnus of La Salle High School and intends graduate work at Northwestern University. Tiedeken is a 1964 La Salle High graduate who plans graduate work at Harvard, Columbia or Cornell. Witt graduated from Pittsburgh's Central Catholic High and plans graduate work at Rutgers University.

Three La Salle College students have been selected for participation in Princeton University's summer work program in Germany for 1968.

The La Salle students are Frank Di Gilio, 2228 S. 21st st., a senior German major; Charles P. Lutcavage, 274 Hickory rd., Warminster, a sophomore who plans to major in German, and Walter J. Tilger, 541 W. Lindley ave., a junior economics major.

This is the third year that La Salle has participated in the Princeton program, which each summer places U.S. college students in jobs for German industry and residences with German families.

Seven La Salle students have previously taken part in the program, which is under the aegis of Dr. Konrad Schaum, of Princeton's department of Germanic languages.
Open auditions and interviews for the company and staff of La Salle College's Music Theatre '68 will be held on two Sundays, March 3 and 10, at 2 and 7:30 P.M., in the College Union Theatre on campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Managing Director Dan Rodden announces openings for actors and actresses, singers, dancers, qualified pit musicians, and members of the technical and administrative staff. Positions for apprentices, to be chosen from local high school and college students, were also announced. Staff and apprentice candidates should report for interview at 1 P.M. on the audition dates. All company and staff members, including apprentices, will be salaried.

The unique, college-sponsored theatre will open Friday, July 5, for 32 performances of "My Fair Lady." The second play, to be either "Kiss Me Kate" or Noel Coward's "Bitter Sweet," will open for 25 performances on Friday, August 16th. Last summer's presentations, "110 in the Shade" and "The Music Man," received critical acclaim and played to 21,500 people, bringing Music Theatre's six-year total attendance figure to 110,000.

Rodden's 1968 staff will include veteran staff members Sidney MacLeod, technical director; Gerard Leahy, who will design sets and costumes, and musical director Anthony Mecoli. Joining the company for their first season will be choreographers Mary Woods Kelly and Robert Wilson. Peter E. Doyle will be assistant managing director and Walter Rossi will be responsible for theatre parties and subscriptions.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE March 15, 1968

La Salle College's Sigma Beta Kappa fraternity will hold its third annual Easter Car Wash, benefiting the children of St. John's Orphanage, 40th st. and Wyalusing ave., on Saturday, Mar. 30 from 9 A.M. to 4 P.M. on the La Salle campus, 20th st. and Olney ave. Rain date is Saturday, April 6.

Some 50 members of the fraternity, which throughout each school year conducts baseball, football and basketball programs for the 100 boys at the orphanage, will wash cars for a nominal fee — with all proceeds going toward the purchase of clothing for the children this Easter. Last year, some $300 was donated.

Customers should enter the McCarthy Stadium driveway on 20th st.— about 100 yards south of Olney ave. — and exit through the main driveway near College Hall, according to Mark Llewellyn, SBK president. Prices are $1.75 per car, except $1.50 for "VW" types.

SBK is a social fraternity that also renders on and off-campus services. The La Salle chapter has assisted the orphanage through sports program and annual Christmas parties since 1948.
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

A group of La Salle College students have circulated a petition at a dozen area colleges and universities for President Johnson to release all confidential information related to the assassination of John F. Kennedy.

La Salle's political science association on Tuesday (Mar. 19) opened the signature drive, which will eventually include campaigns on the campuses of the University of Pennsylvania, Temple University, Haverford College, Villanova University, Bryn Mawr College, Rosemont College, Philadelphia Community College, Chestnut Hill College, and Harcum Junior College. The campaigns will continue through April 10.

The La Salle petition, which will be used by students at each of the schools, calls upon President Johnson to (1) release "all relevant information in the National Archives...and all other pertinent information in the possession of the government concerning the assassination..." and (2) "convince (TIME Inc.) of the importance of the Zapruder film and the necessity in having this basic documentation of the actual killing scrutinized by the American public for the purpose of arriving at an informed opinion in a democratic fashion."

La Salle senior Bernard J. Renesky, of 4245 Roberts Circle, Cornwell Heights, president of the association, and Sebastian M. Rainone, a junior, of 1515 S. Broad St., organized the drive on the La Salle campus and arranged the campaigns at other schools with campus leaders.

"It is our conviction," the petition states, "that the official explanation of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy fails to provide an accurate and complete explanation of this historical event...."

Three La Salle College seniors are among the 285 recipients of honorable mention recognition by the Danforth Foundation for 1968-69.

Only one senior from the metropolitan area, a student at Bryn Mawr College, was among the 123 Danforth scholarship winners selected from more than 2,000 nominees representing some 1200 colleges and universities across the nation.

Two of La Salle recipients, Richard Tiedeken, of 1630 Worrell st., and Vincent R. Kling, of 5323 Magnolia st., earlier this year were among the college's five winners of Woodrow Wilson awards for 1968-69. The third Danforth selectee is Thomas J. McCabe, of 2017 Tomlinson rd.

All three of the La Salle recipients are majoring in English at the college. Kling is an evening division student and was believed to be the first local evening college student to have won a Woodrow Wilson award. He is a 1960 graduate of Roman Catholic High School. Tiedeken is an alumnus of La Salle High School and plans graduate studies at Harvard, Columbia or Cornell. McCabe is a 1964 graduate of Father Judge High School.

San Francisco poet Brother Antoninus will offer readings of his works for the students and faculty of La Salle College at 12:30 P.M. this Wednesday (Mar. 27) in the College Union Theatre on campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Open to the public and admission-free, the program is part of La Salle's continuing concert and lecture series held throughout each academic year.

Brother Antoninus, a Dominican Order brother whose poetry has received national attention since the publication of his first book, The Residual Years, in 1948. He converted to Catholicism in 1949 after identification for many years as a member of an anarcho-pacifist group in the San Francisco Bay area. He spent a year with the Catholic Worker movement, then entered the Dominican Order in 1951 as a lay brother (oblate). After six years of contemplative life, he reemerged as an important member of the San Francisco poetry renaissance in 1957.
"Catholic Elementary and Secondary Education: A Dilemma for the Future," will be the topic for the annual alumni symposium to be sponsored by La Salle College at 7:30 P.M., Thursday (April 4), at the Adelphia Hotel, 13th & Chestnut Sts.

Conducted by the La Salle alumni association's Alpha Epsilon Honor Society, the symposium will be preceded (6 P.M.) by a dinner at which 66 seniors and seven honorary members will be inducted into the honor group.

Two prominent clergymen with differing views on Catholic education will take part in the discussion. Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward T. Hughes, superintendent of archdiocesan schools, and Very Rev. Msgr. Joseph W. Devlin, associate professor in La Salle's graduate religion program and secretary of the Matrimonial Tribunal in the Camden (N.J.) diocese, will be the principal participants.

Others on the panel will be Bernard J. McCormick, an associate editor of Philadelphia Magazine; Dr. E. Russell Naughton, professor of philosophy at La Salle, and Rev. Patrick Chiarilli, pastor of St. Jude's Parish in Blackwood, N.J.

Honorary inductees will be: McCormick; Brother Martin Stark, F.S.C., vice president, student affairs; Rev. Regis Ryan, O.P., La Salle chaplain; Brother Charles Gresh, F.S.C., dean of men; William J. Binkowski, chairman, education department; Rev. Raymond F. Halligan, theology professor, and Dr. Robert J. Courtney, chairman, political science department.

Tom Wicker, chief of the New York Times' Washington Bureau, will address the students and faculty of La Salle College at 8:30 P.M. next Wednesday (Apr. 10) in the College Union Theatre on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Open to the public and admission-free, the talk is part of La Salle's continuing concert and lecture series held throughout each academic year. Wicker will discuss the coming presidential election.

A graduate of the University of North Carolina, Wicker began his journalism career as sports editor of a daily in Lumberton, N.C. In 1952, after Navy service, he became sports editor of the Winston-Salem Journal, then Sunday features editor and, in 1957, the Journal's Washington correspondent. He was named associate editor of Nashville's Tennessean in 1959 and the following year joined the staff of the Times' Washington Bureau. He was appointed chief of the bureau in 1964. He is the author of six books, among them Kennedy Without Tears, and many articles appearing in Atlantic Monthly, Esquire, Harpers, New Republic and the Saturday Evening Post.

Two La Salle College seniors are among some 2,500 persons selected for Fulbright Exchange grants for 1968-69.

One of the La Salle recipients, Vincent R. Kling, an evening division student of 5323 Magnolia st., earlier this year also received Woodrow Wilson Foundation and Danforth Foundation awards. He is believed to be the first local evening college student to receive the prestigious grants.

The second Fulbright recipient is Carmen D. Valentino, of 2990 Richmond st. He and Kling are the first La Salle undergraduates to receive Fulbright awards. Each plans advanced studies in German literature in Austria and Germany.

Kling, an employee of the Xerox Corporation during the day, is an English major at La Salle. He is a 1960 graduate of Roman Catholic High School and served in Germany while in the Army prior to enrolling at La Salle. He will study the German novel at Gottingen University in Germany.

Valentino, a 1964 graduate of St. Joseph's Preparatory School, is a German major at La Salle, where he has also studied Russian. He is president of the German Club and a member of the Slavic Club on the campus. He plans studies in German literature at the University of Vienna, Austria.
La Salle College's biology department has been awarded a $7,513 National Science Foundation grant for a summer training program for 24 outstanding high school science students.

A new facet of the 1968 program will be the addition of 10 "average" students not supported by the NSF grants. The innovation is aimed at identifying possible hidden talent and the acceleration of their development in scientific studies.

The six-week program, La Salle's fifth in seven years, starts June 24 and concludes August 2, according to Dr. Thomas J. Lowery, associate professor of biology and director of the program. Dr. Charles B. Wurtz, assistant professor of biology, will be a lecturer.

Twenty-four superior 10th and 11th grade pupils from public and private high schools will be selected for the co-educational project, which this summer will concentrate on the field of microecology.

The program is designed to "identify and encourage superior high school students who have an excellent potential of becoming scientists."
A musical comedy presentation, band and choral concerts, an art festival, and student exhibits will highlight La Salle College's 14th annual Open House next Sunday (Apr. 28), 12:30-5 P.M. on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Some 4,000 visitors are expected to tour the facilities of the liberal arts college, which is conducted by the Brothers of the Christian Schools, a Roman Catholic teaching order.

Activities will start at 12:30 P.M., when some 50 student exhibits and campus tours will open. Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., Ph.D., La Salle president, will welcome the guests at 2:30 P.M. in the College Union Theatre. Gregory J. Woodring, 7009 Cedar Park ave., and James J. Clarke, of Clifton Heights, are co-chairmen of the event.

Highlights of the day and starting times will be: excerpts from "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," the undergraduate spring musical production, at 2 P.M. in the College Union Theatre; an ROTC band concert in the quadrangle at 12:30 P.M.; a men's choral concert at 2:45 P.M. in the theatre; an ROTC exhibit in McCarthy Stadium at 1:15 P.M., and presentation of awards for student exhibits at 4 P.M. in the theatre. The campus art tours, which will include an art contest sponsored by the College Union, start at 1 P.M. Three prizes in each of three categories -- oils, sketches and watercolors -- will be awarded.

The Faculty Senate of La Salle College has endorsed the Poor Peoples' March on Washington, it was announced Friday (May 3) by Charles A.J. Halpin, senate president.

Last week, La Salle's student council also endorsed the campaign, which is being sponsored by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference in honor of its slain leader, Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King.

The Senate endorsed two proposals, one "in support of the Poor Peoples' Campaign for Jobs and Income and the formation of a La Salle College Support Committee for the Poor People's Campaign" and a motion that "...strongly recommends to the administration of the college that they take the same action to unify the entire college behind this most important endeavor."
Ralph Nader, the automobile and consumer protection crusader, will address the students and faculty of La Salle College at 12:30 P.M. this Wednesday (May 8) in the College Union Theatre on the campus, 20th & Olney Ave.

Open to the public and admission - free, Nader's talk is part of La Salle's continuing concert and lecture program held throughout each academic year. His topic will be, "Environmental Hazards: Man Made and Man Remedied."

A native of Connecticut and a graduate of Princeton and Harvard Universities, Nader's best-selling book, Unsafe At Any Speed, created a sensation when published in 1965. He has since become known as a critic of many interests, the most recent an indictment of "unnecessary risks" in the coal mining industry. Nader has contributed articles to many magazines, among them The Nation, The Economist and Atlantic Monthly.
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

The College Council of La Salle College, chief policy-making body of the Catholic liberal arts college, has unanimously endorsed the Poor People's Campaign and contributed $1250 to the effort.

The action and gift were announced by Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., La Salle president, who said that the Council "gave its overwhelming support to the objectives of the March to eradicate poverty in America."

The gift includes $1,000 for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, sponsor of the nationwide campaign, and $250 to La Salle's student drive, headed by Owen Montague and George T. Eckenrode, both La Salle juniors.

"It is hoped," Brother Daniel stated, "that since the La Salle effort has been student-inspired, our student body will endeavor to match this gift by the college."

The Council is composed of the chief administrative officers of the college -- the president, four vice presidents, and deans -- and three elected members from the Faculty Senate.

Earlier this month, both La Salle's student council and faculty senate endorsed the aims of the SCLC campaign.
U.S. Supreme Court Justice (Ret.) Tom C. Clark on Wednesday (May 15) called for "an end to this debasement of law and constituted authority."

Justice Clark addressed some 400 honors students, faculty and parents at La Salle College's annual Founder's Day honors convocation in the College Union Theatre on the campus.

La Salle President Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., conferred honorary doctor of laws degrees upon Justice Clark, H. Ladd Plumley, chairman of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency and board chairman, State Mutual Life Insurance Co. of America, and Mrs. Curtis Bok, prominent civic leader.

Two $750.00 cash awards for "distinguished teaching"—made possible by a grant by the Christian R. and Mary F. Lindback Foundation—and some 35 student prizes for academic excellence were also presented at the convocation, which marks the feast day of St. John Baptiste de La Salle, founder of the Brothers of the Christian Schools, the teaching order that conducts the college.

Recipients of the 1968 Lindback awards were Eugene J. Fitzgerald, of 310 Paxon ave., Glenside, an associate professor of philosophy, and John J. Keenan, 833 Martin ave., Bryn Mawr, an associate professor of English. They are the 23rd and 24th recipients since the awards were initiated in 1961. The awards were presented by Brother Daniel Burke, F.S.C., vice president for academic affairs.
"The lesson today is clear," Justice Clark said. "We must preserve, protect and defend our Constitution. This is our great and solemn duty. It is not the Constitution, the law as the individual would like to have it, but as it is, that we must respect, obey, enforce and defend.

"The recent wave of civil disobedience," he added, "of trespass and illegal possession of private and public property; of riots and burning, looting and maiming, is contrary to the great tradition left us by the founders. It can but undermine the institutions that they have founded.

"History teaches us that law and order is the greatest bulwark of individual liberty," Justice Clark continued. "It defines and protects every man's individual rights, but it also imposes individual responsibility on every man to respect and recognize the individual rights of others.

"Where law ends, tyranny begins," Justice Clark concluded. "But where law is respected and enforced, freedom lives. Law is the sine qua non of a free society. It is, therefore, for us to bring an end to this debasement of law and constituted authority. It is the duty of you—and you—and you."

Wives of 161 La Salle College day and evening division seniors will receive "Ph.T.—Putting Him Through" degrees at La Salle's 15th annual Ph.T. ceremonies this Sunday (May 26) at 7 P.M., in the College Union Theatre, on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Aurelia K. Brooks, mother of four children whose husband, Dr. Victor Brooks, has been a member of La Salle's evening division staff since 1955, will receive the annual special Ph.T. award "with distinction" at the event, which recognizes the wives' assistance in their husband's pursuit of a bachelor's degree. Husbands will receive their degrees at commencement exercises Sunday, June 2 at Convention Hall.

Margaret Mary Kearney, educational director for WCAU-TV, will give the principal address, and Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., La Salle president, will confer the "degrees." Brother Emery Mollenhauer, F.S.C., evening division dean, will present the "degree" candidates.

The Brooks and their two sons and twin daughters make their home at 337 Powderhorn rd., Ft. Washington. Their oldest son, Victor, Jr., will be among La Salle's graduating class this June. Craig, 18, will enter La Salle's freshman class this fall; twin sisters Lynn and Donna are 12 years old.

Dr. Brooks is associate professor and co-chairman of the evening division's psychology department.

Dr. Brooks is associate professor and co-chairman of the evening division's psychology department.
La Salle College will dedicate its new Penllyn Biostation, a unique college-operated facility, at ceremonies this Friday (May 24) at 3:30 P.M. in the Penllyn Natural Area, Penllyn Blue Bell Pike at the Wissahickon Creek in Montgomery County.

Lt. Gov. Raymond J. Broderick will be the principal speaker at the ceremonies, to which the public is invited. Thomas Dolan, president of the Wissahickon Valley Watershed Assoc., and Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., La Salle president, will also take part in the dedication.

Dr. John S. Penny, chairman of La Salle's biology department that will operate the station, will offer welcoming remarks, and the Rev. T.L. Davis, pastor of Bethlehem Baptist Church, Penllyn, will deliver the invocation.

The biostation, which was erected through grants from the Gulf Oil Corp. and the Scholler Foundation on land donated by the Watershed Assoc., consists of a large laboratory equipped with instruments for ecological studies of the stream's rate of flow and water purity.

Perhaps most unique to the laboratory will be a depth recording well similar to that used by the U.S. Geological Survey for recording stream flows and for sampling water quality on the National Water Quality Network. The well, an indoor open communication to the stream, will rise and fall as does the stream itself, while a meter continuously records changes in stream flow.

La Salle biology students have used the area for ecological studies since 1964, and during the past two years have been joined in their research by biology students from Chestnut Hill and Gwynedd-Mercy Colleges.

The biostation was designed to provide a center for environmental studies of the influences of suburbia. It is located on the edge of the 17-acre natural area, which has been set aside as a capsule of land "where nature can take its course." The Commonwealth has balled the stream's pollution control the best of any in the State.

An Episcopal bishop, a distinguished anthropologist, an educator, and a judge will receive honorary degrees at La Salle College's 105th commencement exercise at 4 P.M. next Sunday (June 2) at Philadelphia's Civic Center (Convention Hall).

Dr. Eric F. Goldman, Rollins Professor of History at Princeton University and a former special consultant to President Johnson, will deliver the commencement address.

The deans of La Salle's schools of arts and science, business administration, and the evening division will present some 750 candidates for bachelor's degrees to Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., Ph.D., La Salle president, who will also confer the honorary degrees. The valedictory address will be given by Brother Edward J. Sheehy, F.S.C.

The Baccalaureate Mass will be concelebrated at 2 P.M. Saturday, June 1 at St. Athanasius Church, Limekiln Pike and Walnut Lane. Rev. Regis Ryan, O.P., and the Rev. Raymond F. Halligan, O.P., La Salle chaplains, will be principal celebrants at Masses in the upper and lower churches, respectively.

Forty-three graduates will receive U.S. Army commissions at swearing-in ceremonies conducted by Col. Stephen Silvasy, professor of military science at La Salle. One Marine Corps commission will also be given.

Dr. Goldman has been a member of the Princeton faculty since 1940 and was named to his present rank in 1962. He resigned from his post as President Johnson's advisor in 1966.

Bishop De Witt succeeded the late Bishop J. Gillespie Armstrong as head of the Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania in 1964. Dr. Dart, who is on a leave of absence from the University of Witwatersrand, Johannesburg, is perhaps best known for his discovery of the remains of Australopithecus africanus, an advanced ape, in 1924. Msgr. Dean, a native Philadelphian, has been principal of Cardinal Dougherty since 1962. Judge Klein has been active in a wide variety of public services, among them as chairman of Temple University's board of trustees since 1960.
An eminent historian has called upon La Salle College graduates to pursue "the quest for quality in American life" and derided "students who would rather throw rocks than study; professors who consider themselves above teaching."

Dr. Eric F. Goldman, Rollins Professor of History at Princeton University, gave his remarks Sunday (June 2) in the commencement address to some 750 La Salle graduates at the college's 105th commencement exercise attended by some 10,000 parents and friends at Philadelphia Civic Center (Convention Hall).

Forty-three graduates received U.S. Army commissions at swearing-in ceremonies conducted by Col. Stephen Silvasy, professor of military science at La Salle, during the commencement exercise. Two Marine Corps commissions were also given.

Dr. Goldman, who was a consultant to President Johnson from 1964-66, cited the "brilliant success" of the material achievements of America, and added "...it is only the fey and supercilious who would look down upon it."
"In the coming decades," he continued, "this drive should and will go on, particularly to bring within the canopy of affluence those who have been left outside. Inevitably, it will concentrate on the Negro, who has so plainly been the step-child of American opportunity.

"Yet the evidence is accumulating," Dr. Goldman asserted, "that the pursuit of quantity will be accompanied by another urge -- the quest for quality in American living. A large part of our population has reached the point where a comfortable degree of food, clothing, and housing seem secure. They are reaching out to make everyday life fuller, more interesting, more colorful, more aesthetically satisfying.

"This word 'quality,' like all evocative phrases, can be used to cover a multitude of nonsense, some of it dangerous nonsense," he stated. "It does not mean -- and most of the oncoming generation do not mean by it -- students who would rather throw rocks than study; professors who consider themselves above teaching; ladies in the suburbs who, proclaiming their interest in art, ignore the slums around the corner; or a whole strand in American thinking which persists in a limped, fatalistic view that a nation cannot be thoroughly democratic and materially comfortable and still develop exciting ideas, attitudes, and arts."

"The genuine quest for quality," Dr. Goldman concluded, "shows itself in the students who engage in responsible forms of the questioning of established institutions; the new breed of professors who recognize that they have a responsibility to their surrounding communities as well as to the length of their bibliographies; the educators who seek not only more school buildings but enrichment and sharpening of what is taught..."

A counseling workshop for religious superiors, a special "enrichment" program in graduate theology and eight new evening courses will highlight La Salle College's summer session this year.

The first session of day summer classes begins June 17 and continues through July 19. The second session opens July 22 and concludes Aug. 23, according to Brother Thomas Donaghy, F.S.C., Ph.D., summer sessions director. Registration is slated for June 13.

Evening classes, under the aegis of Brother Emery Mollenhauer, F.S.C., Ph.D., evening college dean, began June 5 and continue first session offerings through July 16. Second session classes open July 17 and conclude Aug. 27.

The graduate theology program, directed by Brother Edward Davis, F.S.C., opens June 24 and continues through Aug. 3. Registration will be held June 23. Admission is open to those who hold bachelor degrees and 26 hours in humanistic studies, including theology.
La Salle's psychology department will sponsor the counseling workshop, which will begin June 24 and conclude July 5. Several nationally prominent counselors and psychologists will be faculty members in the program for religious superiors of Brothers' orders.

The theology "enrichment" program is being offered principally for members of religious orders who hold master's degrees in theology, although this is not a prerequisite. The program consists of three credit hours of lectures, a three credit seminar and weekly discussion groups. The faculty includes Dr. Victor Preller, of Princeton University, and Brother Michael Kerlin, F.S.C., Ph.D., of La Salle.

Among the new evening college courses this summer will be History of Greece and Rome; Readings in Drama; Psychology of Adjustment; Industrial Psychology; Social Deviency and Social Disorganization; Interdepartmental Readings; Nineteenth Century British Literature, and American Federal Government.

August 9, 1968

Dr. Thomas N. McCarthy, professor of psychology and director of the counseling center at La Salle College, has been elected president of the Personnel and Guidance Association of Greater Philadelphia for 1968-69.

The PGAGP is a scientific and professional association, which has some 350 members who are concerned with the advancement of personnel and guidance work. Among them are high school, college, government and industrial counselors.

Dr. McCarthy, a member of the La Salle staff since 1952 and director of the counseling center since 1959, is a native of Tewksbury, Mass., and holds advanced degrees in psychology from the Catholic University in Washington and the University of Ottawa. He is a past president of the American Catholic Psychological Assoc., and has held a variety of posts on the board of directors of such organizations as the St. Joseph's Hospital School of Nursing, the National Catholic Guidance Council, and is now on the professional board of the Academy of Religion and Mental Health.

Philip T. Archilles has been appointed associate director of development at La Salle College, it was announced by Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., Ph.D., La Salle president.

Archilles, 42, succeeds Thomas M. Bruce, who relinquished the post to devote full attention to his law practice.

A graduate of Emory University, Archilles had been director of development for Child and Family Services of Connecticut prior to joining the La Salle staff. He previously held fund raising and public relations posts with Holland, Estill and Co., New York City, and the Heart Associations of Georgia and New York State.

Archilles and his wife Lillian will make their home in the Mt. Airy section of the city.

Two major programs and four honors courses in the day division, and 17 new courses in the evening school highlight the opening of La Salle College's 106th academic year this fall.

A combined total of more than 6,400 day and evening students are expected for 1968-69 at the Christian Brothers-conducted liberal arts college.

The day division expects some 800 freshmen Sept. 10, when the annual Freshman Orientation Workshop starts on the campus, raising overall day enrollment to some 3,200. Registration will also be held Sept. 10-13, Classes resume on Sept. 16.

The evening division will welcome some 700 freshmen when it opens its 22nd academic year on Sept. 11. Registration will be held on the evenings of Sept. 4, 5, 9, and 10. More than 3,200 evening students are expected this year.

New major programs in correctional work and in theology, plus 16 new faculty members highlight day school's new academic year.

The new program in correctional work, under the aegis of sociology department chairman Dr. Thomas M. Coffee, includes a two semester field seminar in correctional work entailing two hours of classroom and six hours of field work per week. The seminar will examine the correctional process through field work in law enforcement, judicial and correctional agencies, and classroom seminars.

A new theology program has been initiated under the direction of Brother James Kaiser, F.S.C., S.T.D., chairman of the theology department. Although theology courses have always been available to La Salle students, this program will provide the first full four-year curriculum in the subject for students who wish to major in theology. The program will require 36 hours in the subject for majors.

The new honors program courses will include The City, conducted by Dr. Digby Baltzell, of the University of Pennsylvania; The Film as Art, by Brother Charles Mc Clelland, F.S.C., of La Salle High School, and Yeats, given by Dr. Lester Connor, of Chestnut Hill College.

Among new evening courses for 1968-69 will be: British and American Novel—Richardson to Hardy, Renaissance Literature to 1640, Nineteenth Century Literature, all English courses; industry courses in Systems and Procedures, Compensation Methods and Job Evaluation, and Corporate Simulation, Strategies and Decision Making; Philosophy of Science; physics courses in Electronic Devices, Communication Theory and Circuits, and Computer Systems; Abnormal Psychology; Criminology, and theology offerings in The Church, The Sacraments, Contemporary Moral Theology, and Comparative Religions.
Former Vice President Richard Nixon was the victor in a presidential mock election by evening division students at La Salle College.

Ex-Alabama Gov. George Wallace surpassed by two votes the ballots cast for Vice President Hubert Humphrey in the poll, which was conducted by the evening division's student Marketing Association during registration last week (Sept. 9-II).
Only 1462 of the school's over 3,000 students voted.

No candidate received a clear majority in the election, which utilized paper ballots. Nixon received 614 votes or 42% of those cast, while Wallace netted 378 (25.3%) and Humphrey 376 (25.8%). The average age of those voting was 26.8 years.

Senior John F. Anthony, of 3561 Primrose rd., president of the evening Marketing Association, announced the election results.

La Salle's day division students, who strongly endorsed President Johnson and President Kennedy in previous election year polls, plan a mock election to be conducted by the Political Science Association during the week of Oct, 14-18.
Ten La Salle College faculty members have been promoted in rank, it was announced by Brother Daniel Burke, F.S.C., Ph.D., vice president for academic affairs.

Five new associate professors were named, among them three from the psychology department. Appointed associate professors of psychology were Dr. Victor Brooks, 337 Powder Horn rd., Ft. Washington; Dr. Joseph D. Kovatch, 112 Hunter lane, North Wales, and Dr. John A. Smith, 123 Hickory Hill rd., Philadelphia.

Other associate professors named and their fields were Dr. Bernhardt G. Blumenthal, Manheim Gardens, German, and Dr. Raymond J. Pierzchalski, 1896 Purdie Lane, Maple Glen, philosophy.

New assistant professors named were William J. Farnon, 6486 Woodcrest ave., and Eugene Lashchyk, 6300 N. Tenth st., both philosophy; George A. Perfecky, 885 Easton rd., Glenside, Russian; Miroslav Labunka, 5130 N. 15th st., history, and Peter Frank, 415 Sherwood dr., Cinnaminson, N.J., English.
JOHN J. CONBOY APPOINTED ASSISTANT ATHLETIC DIRECTOR AT LA SALLE COLLEGE

John J. (Jack) Conboy has been appointed to the newly-created position of full-time Assistant Athletic Director at La Salle College, it was announced, Wednesday (Oct. 2), by Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., Ph.D., President.

Conboy, 44, graduated from La Salle in 1950. He recently retired from the U.S. Army, after 20 years service, with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. A veteran of three wars (World War II, Korea and Vietnam), Conboy also served on the ROTC staff at La Salle as Assistant Professor, Military Science and Tactics, from 1960 to 1964.

Conboy was a member of St. Joseph's Prep's last city championship football team in 1939. He also played basketball at the Prep before graduating in 1942. After three years of World War II service in Europe, Conboy enrolled at Georgetown where he played football for two years before transferring to La Salle.

Conboy was assistant football coach at St. Joseph's Prep from 1948 to 1950. He also coached Army football and basketball teams in Europe and Hawaii and organized a triathlon team at La Salle which produced three present members of the U.S. Army modern pentathlon team--Don Walheim, Bill Conroy and Gary McNulty.

Conboy, who holds an MBA degree in Industrial Management from Temple University, resides in Drexel Hill with his wife, Anne, and four children.
Brother Daniel Burke, F.S.C., Ph.D., for the past eight years the vice president for academic affairs at La Salle College, has been named the 25th president of the college, effective next June.

The appointment was announced by Brother James Carey, F.S.C., provincial of the Baltimore District of the Brothers of the Christian Schools, the Catholic teaching order which conducts La Salle.

Brother Burke, 42, succeeds Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., Ph.D., who after completing 11 years in office next year will have served the longest term as president in the 106-year history of the college.

Brother Bernian, who will remain in office until next June, will study in Europe on a sabbatical leave during 1969-70 in preparation for a requested assignment to one of the Brothers' mission outposts in Africa, Latin America, or the Philippines.

Brother Burke holds bachelor's, master's, and doctor's degrees in English from the Catholic University in Washington. He has also pursued advanced studies at the University of Pennsylvania and the University of London, and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa honor society. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Burke, of 1368 Hamilton rd., Pittsburgh.

Brother Burke entered the Christian Brothers order in 1944 and joined the La Salle staff in 1957 as an assistant professor of English. He now holds the faculty rank of associate professor of English. Prior to his assignment to La Salle, he had taught English at West Philadelphia Catholic High School for Boys (1949-51), La Salle Hall in Ammendale, Md. (1951-52), and at De La Salle College in Washington (1952-57).

Brother Burke has been a visiting lecturer at Manhattan College, where he is now a member of the board of trustees. He has been a frequent contributor of verse and criticism to many scholarly journals and periodicals—among them, Modern Fiction Studies, The Commonweal, Thought, Four Quarters, the Journal of Arts and Letters, and the Encyclopedia Americana.

He has been a member of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation selection committee for the past three years, and is also a member of the Modern Language Association, the National Council of Teachers of English, the National Education Association, and the American Society for Aesthetics.

In making the announcement, Brother Carey cited Brother Bernian's "outstanding contributions to the institution. His commitment to the high ideals of La Salle, his dedicated service in varied areas of the civic and academic life of Philadelphia have been truly remarkable."

Among the innovations at La Salle during Brother Bernian's tenure as president have been the appointment of two laymen as vice presidents in 1959; establishing a Faculty Senate in 1966; construction of a science center, a student union, and three residence halls, and the initiation of a summer music theatre on the campus in 1962.

Brother Bernian, 52, has held a wide variety of civic posts in the past decade, among them his current position as chairman of the Mayor's Commission on Higher Education and the Community College, the executive committee of the Foundation for Independent Colleges, among many others. He is the son of Mrs. Margaret O'Neill Kelly, of 3535 Old York rd., Baltimore, and the late James Kelly.
La Salle College's Sigma Beta Kappa fraternity will hold its third annual Christmas Car Wash, benefiting the children of St. John's Orphanage, 40th st. and Wyalusing ave., on Saturday, Oct. 19 from 9 A.M. to 4 P.M. on the La Salle campus, 20th st. and Olney ave. Rain date is Saturday, Oct. 26.

Some 40 members of the fraternity, which throughout each school year conducts baseball, football and basketball programs for the 100 boys at the orphanage, will wash cars for a nominal fee—with all proceeds going toward a Christmas party and gifts for the children.

Customers should enter the McCarthy Stadium driveway on 20th st.—about 100 yards south of Olney ave.—and exit through the main driveway near College Hall. Prices are $1.75 per car, except $1.50 for "VW" types.

SBK is a social fraternity that also renders on and off-campus services. The La Salle chapter has assisted the orphanage through sports program and annual Christmas parties since 1948.

Two nationally prominent economists will be honored at La Salle College’s annual fall honors convocation next Sunday (Oct. 27) at 8 P.M. in the College Union Theatre on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Dr. Robert L. Heilbroner, professor of economics at the New School for Social Research in New York, and Dr. Fritz Machlup, Walker Professor of Economics and International Finance at Princeton University, will receive honorary Doctor of Laws degrees at the convocation, which is the traditional occasion for the presentation of honors students for recognition.

Both Heilbroner and Machlup will address the convocation at which Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., Ph.D., La Salle president, will preside and confer the honorary degree.

Dr. Joseph F. Flubacher, chairman of La Salle’s economics department, will sponsor Heilbroner for the honorary degree, and Dr. Casimir Ciesla, professor of economics, will sponsor Machlup.

Honors students will be presented by their respective deans—arts and science, business and evening division for recognition of their outstanding academic achievements. A brief reception for the students, their parents, the faculty and honored guests after the convocation will be held in the College Union lounge.

Government, labor and universities are responsible for much of the student unrest today, a leading U.S. economist told a La Salle College audience Sunday night (Oct. 27).

Dr. Robert L. Heilbroner, professor of economics on the graduate faculty at the New School for Social Research in New York, gave his remarks at La Salle's annual fall honors convocation in the College Union Theatre on the campus. Some 400 honors students, their parents, and faculty members attended.

Dr. Heilbroner and Dr. Fritz Machlup, Walker Professor of Economics and International Finance at Princeton University, received honorary Doctor of Law degree at the event, which is the traditional occasion for the presentation of honors students for recognition. La Salle President Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., conferred the honorary degrees. Dr. Machlup also addressed the students.

"Thirty years ago, when I was in college," Dr. Heilbroner said, "we had clear-cut ideas as to what forces in our society were our enemies and what forces were our allies. In particular, we looked to the labor movement and to government as sources of inspiration and support for our ideals.

"Today, he asserted, "the student finds no such supporting elements in our society. He looks to business without hostility but with very little interest. He sees in labor a strong force for intolerance and even racism which destroys his allegiance with the working man. He looks to government as the source of policies which have led to a disastrous war."

"Why, then, does he turn against the university?" he asked. "The answer, I regret to state, is because he feels that the university, which should be the active supporter and exponent of his own feelings of idealism and protest, is becoming more and more the passive servant of society, interested in producing not free spirits, but bureaucrats of the mind.

"If this, as I think, is the reason behind the students' revolt against the university," Dr. Heilbroner stated, "the answer is very clear. It is for the university again, consciously, to assert its intellectual and moral leadership in a society where it is indeed difficult for young people to find examples of the courage and independence of thought and action for which they are seeking.

"One need not condone the excesses of students, many of whom have gone far beyond permissible limits in expressing their outrage, to recognize that the existence of this outrage is a challenge that should provoke within the university not anger but thoughtfulness," he concluded.

“Of Thee I Sing,” an award winning musical of the early 1930s, will be presented by the Masque of La Salle College, Friday, Dec. 6 and continuing through Dec. 15 in the College Union Theatre on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

The undergraduate theatre group will offer the musical each evening at 8:30 P.M., except Sunday when performances are at 7 P.M. Special group and student discounts are available.

Directed by Sidney Mac Leod, the Gershwin-Kaufman political satire received a Pulitzer Prize after its initial presentation in 1931. Among its memorable tunes are "Love is Sweeping the Country," "Wintergreen for President," and the title song.

In principal roles are La Salle students John O'Donnell, Tom Gino and Robert Fields, and female guests performers Mary Lou Metzger and Linda Del Governatore.

Stanley Kauffmann, film critic for New Republic Magazine, will address the students and faculty of La Salle College at 8:40 PM next Tuesday (Dec. 10) in the College Union lounge on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Open to the public and admission-free, Kauffmann's talk is sponsored by the college's Evening Division. His topic will be, "Our Writers and Our Lives."

Kauffmann, who is also associate literary editor of The Republic, is the author of A World on Film, which one critic called "our best book on film criticism." He also won an Emmy Award in 1965 for a TV film series entitled, "The Art of Film."

He has also written seven novels, among them The Philanderer, which was also published in England, and his most recent work, On Books.

Kauffmann has been a drama critic for the N.Y. Times and for New York's education TV station, Channel 13, and was an editor for Bantam Books and Knopf Publishing. He is currently visiting professor of drama at Yale University.

Count Basie and his Orchestra, a jazz legend in their own time, will offer a concert and dance at La Salle College this Sunday (Dec. 8) at 8:15 P.M. in the College Union ballroom on the campus, 20th st. and Olney ave.

Open to the public, the appearance is sponsored by the college union committees of La Salle, an organization which arranges many of the social and cultural events on the campus throughout the academic year.

Basie, who began his musical career with Walter Page and Benny Moten in the 1920s, formed the nucleus of his first orchestra in 1935. He expanded the original 10-piece unit to include many of the men who were to become the greatest names in jazz. Among them were musicians Lester Young, Joe Jones, Buck Clayton, and Illinois Jacquet, and vocalists Jimmy Rushing and Joe Williams.
