On the BACK COVER is a view of the Centenary dinner at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel on March 18.

On the OPPOSITE PAGE Governor Scranton addresses the Charter Day Convocation.
The Centennial year reached a climax with Charter Week—March 17-24—commemorating the hundredth anniversary of the charter granted the College by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania on March 20, 1863.

Proclaimed “La Salle College Week in Philadelphia” by Mayor James H. J. Tate, the week included a formal civic dinner, a special honors convocation, and a Pontifical Mass of Thanksgiving.

An eight page magazine supplement appeared at the start of the week—on Sunday, the 17th—in both the Philadelphia Bulletin and Inquirer telling Philadelphians about La Salle and its accomplishments.

The week’s festivities then officially opened on Monday evening with a dinner at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel. Guests included the Most Reverend John J. Kroll, D.D., Archbishop of Philadelphia, who gave the invocation and the blessing, the Hon. David L. Lawrence, Mayor Tate, and Brother D. John, F.S.C., Provincial of the Baltimore district of the Brothers and Chairman of the Board of Managers.

Doctor Francis J. Braceland, Class of '26, prominent Yale University psychiatrist, was toastmaster. The distinguished alumnus, discharging his duty with wit and warmth, guided the evening’s program to its successful conclusion.

Archbishop Krol delivered greetings from Pope John XXIII, who conveyed his “cordial felicitations” and “Paternal Apostolic Benediction.” The Archbishop added his own best wishes and expressed his appreciation for La Salle’s helping him discharge his responsibility.

The audience of over 800 then heard presidential assistant, former Governor Lawrence read a congratulatory message from President Kennedy.

Congratulatory messages were also received from Gov. William W. Scranton, Pennsylvania; Gov. Richard J. Hughes, New Jersey, and Gov. Elbert N. Carvel, Delaware; Brother Nicet Joseph, F.S.C., superior general of the Christian Brothers; Brother C. Henry, F.S.C., U.S. Superior general; and the Philadelphia City Council. Councilman Robert B. Winkleman, Jr., Class of '44, read the City Council resolution.

The principal address was delivered by Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., Presi-

The Convocation

Also on the dais were Rev. Mark Heath, Chaplain of the College, and the four vice-presidents: Brother Gavin Paul, F.S.C., Brother Fidelian, F.S.C., John L. McCloskey and Joseph J. Sprissler, who was also chairman of the dinner.

On Wednesday afternoon, at a special Charter Day honors convocation, honorary degrees were conferred on three government officials, a bishop, an industrialist, a labor leader, and two scholars.

The Honorable William W. Scranton, Governor of Pennsylvania, received an honorary doctor of laws degree and delivered the principal address on the occasion.

The Most Reverend Gerald V. McDevitt, D.D., Auxiliary Bishop of Philadelphia, was also awarded an LL.D. and presided at the convocation.

Other honorary degree recipients were Mayor James H. J. Tate; Charles E. Beck, president of Philco Corp.; U. S. Treasurer Kathryn Granahan; Joseph T. Kelley, secretary-treasurer of Philadelphia AFL-CIO; and Dr. Stephen Kuttner, canon...

lawyer of Catholic University, all of whom received the degree doctor of laws. Sir Hugh Taylor, president of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation received a doctor of science degree.

Governor Scranton in his address called La Salle and other private colleges "the backbone of higher education" in the state.

Alluding to the battle against unemployment and economic stagnation, Scranton emphasized the need for a strong educational system.

He outlined his hopes for a Council of higher Education which would prepare a master plan for higher education in Pennsylvania. He also expressed the hope that the state constitution would be changed to make it lawful for the state government to sponsor a program of loan-scholarships for college students.

Following Governor Scranton's remarks "For the Commonwealth," Dr. Roland Holroyd, senior faculty member, spoke, "For the College."

Dr. Holroyd delighted his audience with his reminiscences and emphasized, "the prevailing thought through the years ... has been SERVICE to God and to the community."

Dr. Holroyd:

"we could not at that time afford expensive research equipment, consequently we had to specialize in teaching."

"The art of teaching consists in making a student want to learn. Perhaps it is difficult, but it can be done. The familiar aphorism that 'you can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink' is untrue. You can make a horse drink if you salt him first. So the student's interest must be salted."
On Laetare Sunday — March 24 — the week-long celebration was concluded appropriately with a Pontifical Mass of Thanksgiving and the unveiling and blessing of an historic marker at the birthplace of the College.

The Most Rev. Gerald V. McDevitt, D.D., Auxiliary Bishop of Philadelphia, in his sermon extolled the College’s first century of service as a “source of pride to priests, religious and laity of this archdiocese.”

"La Salle College," the Bishop said, "has attained its present status and has renewed itself repeatedly these one hundred years, because it was founded on a great idea, as valid today, as relevant to today’s world, as it was to Lincoln’s, when it welcomed its first class of freshmen."

As long as it continues to thrive, he concluded, faithful to its beliefs and purposes, "there is still hope for society."

Assisting at the Mass were the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward T. Hughes, superintendent of archdiocesan schools, and the Rt. Rev. Msgr., Charles B. McGinley, pastor of Holy Child Parish, each of whom were the deacons of honor.

The Centennial Mass, a Pontifical Mass of Thanksgiving, was celebrated by His Excellency John J. Krol, Archbishop of Philadelphia at the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul on Sunday, March 24.

and the Very Rev. William F. Maloney, S. J., presidents of Villanova University and St. Joseph's College, respectively, were deacon and subdeacon. The Rev. James F. Connelly, secretary to the Archbishop, was the master of ceremonies.

Over 300 Brothers attended the Mass and received Communion from the Archbishop. Brothers, lay faculty, alumni, students, families and friends of La Salle joined in the singing of the Mass.

Later in the afternoon, the bronze commemorative tablet, affixed to what is now the parish hall in St. Michael's (1445 N. Second Street), was presented to the pastor, the Rev. Edwin L. Gallagher, by alumni president James I. Gillespie.

Father Gallagher blessed the marker and reviewed a little parish history for the assembled alumni and parishioners.

"St. Michael's was celebrating its silver jubilee," Father said, when the Brothers were invited to teach there in 1858.

Five years later, the little academy was chartered as La Salle College.
Recent Medal Recipients

The monthly presentations of Centennial medals continued. Begun last October, the program emphasizes the relevance of the various disciplines within the College to the full life of the Christian scholar.

A theme has been assigned to each month and the academic department or departments concerned honor an outstanding individual in a related field by awarding him a Centennial medal.

As reported in the last issue, (Vol. 7, No. 2), the October medal for Theology was given to Frank J. Sheed, author, lecturer and publisher; the November medal for Education was presented to Monsignor Edward T. Hughes, the superintendent of schools in the Philadelphia archdiocese; the December medal for English and Fine Arts was awarded to Daniel Rodden, '41, associate professor of English and moderator-director of the Masque; and the January medal for Community Welfare (Sociology, Political Science and Pre-Law departments) was presented to Judge Gerald F. Flood of the Superior Court of Pennsylvania.

FEBRUARY

The theme for the month of February, "The Christian and the Economy," encompassed the departments of Economics, Accounting, Finance, Marketing and General Business. The fifth medal in the series was presented to Dr. Karl R. Bopp, President of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia.

The medalist was honored for his "distinguished contribution to the public welfare." Dr. James J. Henry, chairman of the Finance department made the presentation.

Dr. Bopp joined the staff of the Federal Reserve Bank in Philadelphia as director of research in 1941, and was vice president in charge of research when he was named president in 1958. He taught economics at the University of Missouri, his alma mater, from 1931 to 1941.

MARCH

In March, the month assigned to "the Christian Philosopher," the sixth Centennial medal was awarded to James F. Anderson, Ph.D., professor of Philosophy at Villanova University.

Dr. E. Russell Naughton, chairman of the department, presented the medal to Dr. Anderson for his "many contributions to scholarship in Scholastic Philosophy."

Dr. Anderson, who joined the Villanova staff in 1959, has written, edited or translated five books on Scholastic Philosophy, the most recent An Introduction to the Metaphysics of St. Thomas in 1953. He has also taught at Loyola (Chicago), Notre Dame and St. Anselm's College (N. H.). He earned his bachelor's degree at the University of Virginia, and his master's and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Toronto.

APRIL

The Psychology department is observing the theme for April: "The Christian and the Individual." The Centennial medal for the month will be presented on April 17 to George Christian Anderson, Director of the Academy of Religion and Mental Health. Dr. John Rooney, chairman of the Psychology department will make the presentation.

Educated at Pennsylvania, Oxford and Columbia Universities, the recipient was ordained to the ministry of the Protestant-Episcopal Church in 1938 and has served as rector of various Episcopal Churches in the Philadelphia area, including Trinity Church in Swarthmore, Pa. from 1942 to 1950.

Around Campus

The Spring term opened with 5100 students and nine new courses in the Day division and five in the Evening.

New Day offerings are courses in Quantum Chemistry, Biochemistry, Physiology, and the writings of Milton. Also added are honors program seminars in Advanced International Relations, Marxism and the Dialectical Tradition, Advanced Accounting, and seminars on Hemingway and Faulkner.

Added to the Evening curriculum are courses in Major American Novelists, Analysis of Financial Statements, Teaching Remedial Reading, and Western Civilization (1815-1863).

A degree program in mathematics, which will be part of the evening school's recently inaugurated liberal arts program is being readied for the fall semester, according to Brother F. Emery, F.S.C., evening dean. More than 150 are enrolled in the new arts program, he said.

CENTENARY LECTURES

The Centennial lecture series, which featured Dr. Mortimer Adler and Senator Eugene McCarthy in the Fall, continued with Dr. William F. Albright on January 30, Steven Spender on March 1 and Rev. Joseph M. Bochenski, O.P. on March 14.

Dr. Albright, emeritus professor of Biblical Archeology at Johns Hopkins University, and former director of the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem, spoke on "Oral and Written Tradition."

Spender, British poet and literary critic, who is giving a course this year in modern poetry at Northwestern University, discussed "The Literature of the 1930's."

Father Bochenski, director of the Institute of East European Studies at Fribourg, Switzerland and well-known philosopher spoke on "Recent Developments in Soviet Philosophy."

COLLINGWOOD HONORED

Charles Collingwood, CBS newscaster and anchorman for the award-winning "Eyewitness" TV series, received the 15th annual Collegian journalism award at the paper's annual banquet.

The plaque, given annually since 1949 for outstanding public service in the field of journalism," was presented by Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., president of the College.

Collingwood, a veteran newscaster with a wide variety of experience, began his career in journalism with United Press (International) in London in 1940. A year later, he joined the CBS News staff — then headed by Edward R. Murrow — and has been a stalwart of the network's news staff ever since. He is perhaps best known as Murrow's successor as host of the "Person to Person" series and most recently, the special "A Tour of the White House With Mrs. John F. Kennedy." He has won Peabody and National Headliner's Club awards.

Past recipients of the Collegian award include Bob Considine (1951); "Red" Smith (1952); Edward R. Murrow (1954); Jim Bishop (1956); David Brinkley (1961), and James Reston, last year's recipient.

DOUGLAS HYDE

Douglas Hyde, former news editor of the London Daily Worker and now lecturer at the NATO Defense College in Paris, was a guest lecturer on February 27. He discussed "The Communist Struggle for Latin America" and called Red...
Subversion in the area "the easiest job on earth" because of "the appalling social injustices throughout South America."

The Alliance for Progress, he asserted, "is really a question of perhaps too little and too late," but he lauded the Alliance for "some of the best land reform programs anywhere in the world."

Hyde also asserted:
— Cuba under Fidel Castro "has had a tremendous effect on the morale and thinking of communist leaders throughout Latin America," charging that "the conditions which brought about the Cuban revolution exist all over Latin America."

— Communists still believe in violence as a means toward power, "(Sovent Premier) Khrushchev's policy of coexistence means only that he rejects nuclear war, not violence."

— The "weak links in the West's chain" are Africa, Asia and Latin America, where "semi-colonial and semi-feudal" conditions prevail, and Latin America is "the most promising of the three, with the most immediate prospect of success." He added "the communists expect to create situations such as Vietnam in South America."

— "Catholics everywhere, and the West as a whole, must do all possible to aid Latin America" because "if Latin America becomes communist the world Catholic total will be almost halved."

COLIN CLARK

Colin Clark, Oxford University economist and population expert, told a campus audience on January 22 that the "populations explosion" is necessary for economic growth.

The lecture was sponsored by the Economics department in conjunction with the centennial year celebration. Dr. Clark's topic was "Rates of Economic Growth."

"Population growth," Clark asserted, "is the driving force behind economic growth. Stopping the so-called population explosion in countries like India, will also halt economic growth."

"The U.S.," he added, "instead of grumbling about the post-war baby boom, should welcome it!"

Clark assailed what he called a policy of "growthmanship" in the U.S., defining this as "the fallacy that mere increases in capital expenditures will increase economic growth." Clark claims that "increases in capital and in the labor force are interdependent" for economy gains.

"More capital does mean more production," Clark added, "but the main factors are the 'Three Es'— education, enterprise and effort."

Clark charged that "the Soviet Union's economy is falling far behind the U.S., and Mr. Khrushchev knows it." He added that he is "appalled by the readiness of U.S. and European economists to accept the false claims of the Soviet economists."

Clark, 57, a native Australian, is director of Oxford's Institute for Research in Agricultural Economics. He served as under-secretary of state for labor and industry and held other posts in his homeland between 1938 and 1952, when he was appointed to his current post.

Among Clark's many writings are his "Critique of Russian Statistics" (1939); "The Economics of 1960" (1942), "Welfare and Taxation" (1984), and "The Real Product of Soviet Russia" (1960).

EGAN LECTURES

The final two in a series of nine papers in the History department's Maurice Francis Egan Lecture Series will be delivered on April 25 and May 16.

On the first date Victor Mametey, Ph.D., professor of history at Florida State University, will be the guest lecturer. On May 16 Ugo Donini, of our History department, will conclude the series.

Each lecture considers some aspect of the central topic; "Immigrant Groups and Woodrow Wilson's Peacemaking Policy." The discussions attempt to discover what influence, if any, various immigrant groups exerted on President Wilson's policies immediately following the first World War.

Dr. Mametey will discuss the Slovak-Americans; Mr. Donini, the Italian-Americans.

Maurice Francis Egan, '75 was born in Philadelphia in 1852. After serving as editor of a number of Catholic publications and as a professor of English at the Catholic University of America, he accepted the position of Ambassador to Denmark in 1907. He remained there under three Presidents until 1919. Among his forty volumes was a study of diplomatic Europe during World War I, Ten Years Near the German Frontier.

The lectures are given in the College Union at 8:00 P.M.

THEATRE

The Masque followed its successful presentation of "Death of a Salesman" by launching into rehearsal for its spring musical production "Bye Bye Birdie." The show will open May 5.

Director Dan Rodden will be assisted by his experienced and acclaimed staff: Jean Williams, choreographer; Frank Diehl, music director; Sidney MacLeod, technical director.

The same staff will assist Rodden with MUSIC THEATRE '63, for which auditions and interviews have already begun.

The eight week season will open on July 3 and will feature productions of "Finian's Rainbow" and "Fiorello."

Last year more than 14,000 patrons attended MUSIC THEATRE '62's productions of "Carousel" and "Annie Get Your Gun."

POLITICAL ROUNDTABLE

Panelists were: Dwight MacDonald, Associate Editor of the New Yorker, who took the radical position; Frank S. Meyer, a former editor of the National Review, who defended the conservative position; and David Gilbert Smith, of Swarthmore College's Political Science department, who spoke for the liberal element.

Chairman of the affair was Dr. C. Richard Cleary, Chairman of the Political Science department, who introduced the theme of the discussion. The History department's Dr. John Lukacs was cast in the role of moderator-provocateur.

A near capacity crowd in the College Union ballroom enjoyed the lively discussion, particularly the exchanges between MacDonald and Meyer.

Chairman Cleary reluctantly brought to a close the lively audience participation period which followed the panel discussion.
S.A.M. CONFERENCE

The College hosted the seventh annual conference of the Society for the Advancement of Management, Saturday, February 16, in the College Union.

John R. Bunting, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia, was the principal speaker at a buffet luncheon at noon. Management leaders from local firms took part in morning workshops on the conference theme, "Management in the Electronic Age," a study of the effects of automation on management, labor, and the economy.

Among the guests taking part in the afternoon panel discussion were Donald Lasser, director of economics and research, International Electrical Workers Union; Frederick Hoar, advertising manager for electronic data processing, Radio Corporation of America; Joseph Dolan, area supervisor for the bureau of apprenticeship and training, Department of Labor, and Joseph J. Sprissler, vice president for business affairs at La Salle. Carl Beck, president of the Charles Beck Machine Co., was moderator.

COUNSELING CONFERENCE

Dr. William C. Cottle, of the Boston College Graduate School of Education, was the principal speaker during a counseling conference on February 9.

Dr. Cottle discussed "Professional Orientation of the School Counselor" in the Keynote address at the opening session.

About 300 diocesan high school counselors and administrators attended the conference, conducted by the counseling center under the direction of Dr. Thomas N. McCarthy.

Three symposiums covered the "Professional Approach of the High School Counselor," "Community Resources for Student Development" and "Hearing with the Third Ear."

FACULTY NEWS

Five new members were added to the faculty this semester. Dr. Charles B. Wurtz joined the Biology department staff. The Evening division added John Reardon, Accounting; Bernard J. Vaughn, Economics; Charles A. Moench, Mathematics, and Arthur B. Carey, Marketing.

Francis J. Nathans, roster committee chairman, is acting dean of the School of Business Administration during a semester leave of absence by dean Brother David Cassian, F.S.C.

Henry James and the Dramatic Analogy, a book by Brother C. Joseph, assistant professor of English, was published in March by Fordham University Press.

Three faculty members, Dr. E. Russell Naughton, Brother E. Austin and Claude Koch, appeared on WCAU radio's "Allen Scott Show" on March 6 in a new series of Wednesday shows titled "The Nature of Man." The station is heard in 38 states.

John F. Gallagher, of the political science department took part in WRCV radio's "Jr. Town Meeting of the Air" on April 4.

Gallagher was moderator of the program, dealing with the question, "Is African Nationalism a Breeding Ground for Communism?"

Dr. John J. Rooney, chairman of the psychology department, was publicity chairman for the spring conference of the Personnel and Guidance Association of Greater Philadelphia.

Dr. John Lukacs has been chosen as chairman for the committee on program of the American Catholic Historical Association for 1963. He has also been chosen as an Honors' Examiner for the history honors program of Swarthmore College for 1963.

John F. McGlynn, assistant professor of English died at Veterans Administration Hospital recently. He was 42.

He attended La Salle and St. Joseph's College and obtained his B.A. and M.A. degrees at the University of Pennsylvania.

As an Air Force first lieutenant in World War II, Mr. McGlynn won an Air Force Medal for strafing missions in the China-Burma-India Theater.

COMING EVENTS

Coming events include a concert by the Wissahickon Valley Symphony Orchestra on April 16 at 8 P.M. Dance scenes will be staged by the Jean Williams Ballet Company.

William F. Buckley, editor of the National Review and prominent conservative spokesman will speak on "Freedom and the Welfare State" on April 26 at 12:30 P.M.

One of the country's freshest and most versatile singing groups, the "Four Preps," will appear in two concerts in the College Union ballroom on May 4 at 7:30 P.M. and 10 P.M.

A calendar of events appears on the inside back cover, together with a listing of the art exhibits which may be seen during April and May in the College Union building.
PRESIDENT’S ADDRESS:

“WORDS OF REMINISCENCE, GRATITUDE AND HOPE”

Mr. Chairman, Doctor Breceland, Friend and Alumnum
Your Excellency, Archbishop Krol
Reverend Brother Provincial
Your Excellency, former Governor Lawrence, Presidential Assistant
Your Honor, Mayor Tate
Right Reverend and Very Reverend Monsignor
Reverend Fathers, Venerable Brothers
Members of the Board of La Salle College, Members of the Faculty, and of the Alumni Honored Guests, Ladies and Gentlemen, Student Representatives —

While prolonged oratory is, by common consent, out of place at a birthday party, the celebration of a hundredth anniversary is obviously, a very special occasion calling for at least a few words of reminiscence, gratitude and hope.

Those who do not intimately know, may decide within themselves that my words are really afterall but attempts at oratory. But those who have known the moments of doubt, hardship, anguish, bitterness, joy, success, achievement will feel the emotion which envelopes each general statement. For example, when we say “friends” we cross an illustrious gamut of hierarchy, clergy, lay administrators, members of the press, landscapers, bankers, lawyers, builders—all in their way unselfish and many sometimes self-effacing friends.

And so, reminiscence—since this great occasion is, in reality, our tribute to those who have gone before us, to those who would have wished to have seen this day, those unselshless pionereers who labored against odds that would have daunted any but men of simple and fearless faith. It is no easy thing to spend oneself in the onerous labors of tilling and sowing, leaving the joyous work of the harvest to others.

In a very real sense, on this happy occasion, we are basking in the glory largely merited by those who, in the face of a multitude of difficulties, happily witnessed the birth of La Salle and then jealously saw it through its uncertain and awkward years of adolescence. The problems of today would certainly appear to those valiant men as blessings to be grateful for.

On this hundredth birthday we are, above all else, profoundly and humbly grateful.

First of all, we publicly give thanks to a Beneficent Providence Whose help, during all the history of the College and the High School, has been obvious and bountiful; there have been times — and not only in the dim and distant past — when our very survival seemed the effect of God’s merciful intervention.

Words are incapable of expressing adequately our thanks to the many Brothers, Professors and other Staff Members whose untiring labors and devoted service have made the College and the High School what they are. Many of these great souls have already gone to their merited reward, but, happily, many others are with us tonight, and this great celebration is, in a special way, a tribute to them.

Our words past and present have merited the sincere gratitude of their Alma Mater, for, in a sense, they are the College and the High School. Their work, their successes, loyalty, have in the past and continue to provide today whatever of permanent value and true meaning the work of La Salle may possess.

Our friends and benefactors through the years can also call our joyous centenary celebration their own. Without their continued support and generous help there would literally be nothing to celebrate. It is a source of real joy that so many of these great and true friends are with us tonight.

But a school cannot, like a man celebrating his hundredth birthday, merely feel complacent at having survived. At a hundred, among the great colleges and schools of the world, we are still comparatively young. The past fills us with more than wistful reminiscence and sincere gratitude; the dominant note of this great occasion is confident and optimistic hope.

The present, like the past, is replete with challenge and opportunity. The problems we face may be different from those of former days, but they are no less perplexing and trying for all that.

Facing the future, we depend, as did our predecessors, on the help of Almighty God, and humbly hope to merit His continued guidance.

The truly devoted men and women of our Faculty and Staff fill us with unwavering confidence that, in our case, the past is truly prelude.

We are proud of our students as well as of our faculty — our continued quest for excellence is something they not only benefit from, but something to which they make a very real contribution.

And our confidence is strengthened mightily by our growing host of friends whose interest in us, whose generous and unfailing support, encourage us to face our second century with joyous hope.

Finally, we are grateful to all of you whose presence at our Hundredth Birthday Party makes this an occasion to remember. We ask you to add to your congratulations — which we sincerely appreciate — a fervent prayer that La Salle College and La Salle College High School may prove worthy of their glorious past.

In the name of everyone connected with La Salle, it is my great honor to pledge, on this memorable anniversary, that with God’s help and yours we will measure up to the awesome challenges of the great country and age in which we live.

And in conclusion, to you, my fellow Christian Brothers, my best wishes for our future and most sincere congratulations for having seen this day together.
WALTERS NAMED BASKETBALL COACH

He was named to the All City team three times, and received All State and honorable mention All America recognition in his senior year.

During the 1952-53 season, he was assistant coach to Ken Loeffler. Before that, he was head coach at Roman Catholic High School for five seasons.

Walters thus becomes the first alumnus to assume the head coaching job since the 1948-49 season when Charles McGlone guided the team.

SWIMMING

La Salle's young and highly inexperienced swimming team did surprisingly well in 1963, finishing with a 10-3 dual meet record and a third place finish in the Middle Atlantic Conference Championships.

Bruce Trainor, the Explorers' outstanding freestyler from Lower Merion, Pa., went undefeated in 19 races in the 50, 100, 200 and 500 yard freestyle events during the regular season.

As a team, coach Joe Kirk's Explorers set 38 school, pool and conference records during the year with Trainor's 15 new marks leading the way.

La Salle defeated Temple, Loyola (Md.), P.M.C., Drexel, Penn, the Merchant Marine Academy, Dickinson, East Stroudsburg, Georgetown and Lafayette, and lost only to powerful Villanova, West Chester and MAC champion Bucknell.

Senior Co-captain Bill Raftery drives for a lay-up in the first round N.I.T. game with St. Louis U. at Madison Square Garden. The Explorers lost a heartbreaker in the dying seconds, 61-60. The game was televised nationally by NBC and broadcasted worldwide through the Armed Forces Network. The loss gave the team a final record of 16-8.

Good performances during the year were registered by captain Phil Ranieri, Gerry Burrows and Dave McDonnell, all of whom will be graduated in June.

Returning next year, however, will be freestylers John Becher, Ken Buyarsky, Bill Conroy, Pat Hogan and Trainor; diver Mike Kennedy, Breaststrokers Joe Dieterle and George Schuncke, and backstrokers Charles Trowbridge and Don Walheim.

BASEBALL PREVIEW

The baseball team opened its 19 game schedule, April 1, at P.M.C., with an optimistic attitude tempered slightly by a few question marks. The Explorers looked for improvement on last year's 11-7 record.

Coach Gene McDonnell, who has compiled a brilliant 45-23-1 record in four previous years at the Explorer helm, was faced with a king-sized question mark regarding the physical condition of ace pitcher Joe McNally, of Philadelphia.

A righthander with a blazing fast-ball, McNally suffered from a sore arm last year, and slumped to a 1-4 record after being 10-1 as a sophomore. The team captain says he feels fine, but McDonnell must wait and see what happens when the regular season gets underway.

With or without McNally, the pitching should be fairly strong with such flame-throwers as Tony Crone, Jim Knauff and Joe Evanchich, who was a bellwether of last year's bullpen, finishing with a 5-0 won-loss record and numerous saves.

The other question mark is the catching where McDonnell hopes to replace the graduated Ralph McNally (Joe's brother) with either Frank Gallo, a promising junior, or Steve Clayback, a re-converted pitcher.

Jim Ambrosius, the shortstop who set a college record by hitting safely in all 18 games a year ago, heads the Explorer infield. He led the team with a .421 batting average last year.

At first base, it will be Bruce Wenger (.293) or senior John Smart. Dewey Goetter (.289) will be at second and should combine with Ambrosius to give La Salle one of its best double-play combinations in years. Soph John Spence and junior Jack Farley are battling it out for third base.
crew preview

La Salle's rowing schedule once again will be highlighted by a trip to Florida for three races during the Easter vacation, and, according to coach Joe Dougherty, the Explorers will be going South with a "couple of good, tough crews."

The Explorers have virtually everyone back from last year's varsity boat that finished with a 4-4 record and a fifth place finish in the Dad Vail Regatta. Moreover, there is good talent coming up from the freshmen who took last year's Vail freshman title and finished unbeaten in nine races.

"We are in fairly good shape at this point of the year," says Dougherty, "and we have more depth on our varsity and JV crews than ever before. Of course, it's a big jump from a frosh man to varsity boat, but some of the boys should make it with little difficulty."

The Explorers, captained by Lou Oswald for the second straight year, opened

gradu-eights, la salle

Crew has been one of the most successful athletic endeavors in the history of sports at LSC—and Gradu-Eights La Salle means to keep it that way.

As the name suggests, Gradu-Eights La Salle is an organization of alumni oarsmen who rowed the eight oar shells in college competition since the sport was initiated here in 1947.

After a few years of somewhat informal competition, La Salle went to Poughkeepsie in 1950 for the Dad Vail Regatta, the championship race for small colleges or schools which are new in the sport. The first one got away, but La Salle won six of the next eight Dad Vail Championships. This stands as the best record compiled by any school since the D.V.R.A. was formed in 1939.

With this success as a background, the graduate oarsmen who return annually to see the regatta (now held in Philadelphia every year) were not psychologically prime for the years of '50, '60 and '01 when LSC finished out of the money. Losing is no disgrace when you are competing against twenty crews which include powerful entries from Brown, Amherst, Purdue, and Fordham, but something happened in 1961 that caused some alarm among the interested grads.

Two days before the regatta, one of the varsity men was injured, and it appeared that La Salle would have to scratch. Why not put in a substitute, or promote a junior varsity man? Because there was no junior varsity, nor was there a single eligible substitute. Fortunately, the man was able to row, and the crew did fairly well, but the incident focused attention on the declining stature of rowing at La Salle.

Twelve men met on a June evening in 1961 to discuss ways and means of rejuvenating interest in their favorite sport. The formal organization, Gradu-Eights La Salle resulted.

The organization concluded that while the College continued to support rowing, there were not enough candidates coming out. Investigation revealed that freshmen were not sufficiently aware of crew. When they became aware of it, they still did not come out because they were under the impression the boats were filled and there was no hope for a man without experience.

The first task they assumed was to make freshmen aware of crew early and correct erroneous impressions about the need for prior experience.

During Freshman Orientation Week, 1961, the Gradu-Eights set up a crew display in the College Union building and their representatives talked to several hundred incoming frosh. Many were impressed, for the following Spring saw the largest turnout of candidates ever.

Two Gradu-Eight members, Gerry Hipp, '61 and Harry Todd, '60, assisted Coach Joe Dougherty with the freshmen. The organization raised the extra money needed to send a freshman boat to Florida with the varsity.

The freshman won races at Rollins, Tampa and Florida Southern and climaxed their undefeated season with a victory in the Dad Vail Regatta.

Although last year's varsity lost no men by graduation, it appears that several of last year's freshmen will earn seats in the number one boat this year.

If the crew does well this season, it will be due in no small measure to the active support of this group of interested alumni.
the season at home against American International College, April 1. The Dad Vail Regatta will be held on the Schuylkill, May 11.

1963 TRACK OUTLOOK

Veteran Coach Frank Wetzler would like nothing better than to bring another Middle Atlantic Conference track title to La Salle in 1963, especially since the Explorers will be hosting the conference title event in May. It's going to be a difficult task, however, since the league shows its best balance in years.

Moreover, the Explorers are rebuilding after a 1-6 dual meet record last year and a disappointing fourth place finish in the MAC Championships. If the veterans improve and the newcomers develop sooner than expected, La Salle could sneak by Delaware, Temple and St. Joseph's, however.

Look for the Explorer cindermen to be strongest in the javelin and middle distance events; weak in the hurdles, discus and high-jump, and just about average in everything else.

Outstanding individual performances should come from the following: Don McDyre, La Salle's captain, who has been plagued by arm miseries the past two years, should be consistently over the 200 foot mark in the javelin. His is the school's best in this event since the great Olympian, Al Cantello was graduated. Ralph Palatucci and John Kenny also excel in the javelin, giving La Salle a tremendous one-two-three punch.

Paul Minehan, who ran 4:16.2 as a soph, should help considerably in the 880 and mile. He was the 1962 MAC cross country champion and won the IC4A College Division title. Larry Patterson and Pete Volk are strong challengers in the mile and 2 mile events. Patterson did 4:19.7 indoors and will be better.

Art Ernst, a junior, will help in the 100 and 220 if he can overcome leg muscle injuries that have sidelined him the past two years. Dave Murphy and Bill Duryee, a pair of sophomores, have good sprinting potential and will improve with experience.

Other veterans who should score points include Tom O'Hora, 440; Tom McDonnell, 880; Dick Bernhardt, 440 and 880; Marty Stanczak, high hurdles and broad jump; Tony Lambert, pole-vault and high-jump, and Walt Sampson, high-jump.

1963 GOLF PREVIEW

Things are looking up as far as golf is concerned at La Salle. Last year, the Explorers finished with their best record in history (8-3-1), and wound up sixth in their first appearance in the Middle Atlantic Conference Championships.

Dr. Robert Courtney has only one letterman on his team—Jack Stack, a junior from Philadelphia, who scored 21½ points last year.

Stack averaged a sparkling 79 down the homestretch of the 1962 season, with his best game, 77, coming against St. Joseph's.

1963 TENNIS OUTLOOK

"This is as promising a squad that La Salle has had in the last five years."

So said the Explorers' veteran tennis coach Art Condon as he greeted five letterman, as well as some of the most talented newcomers in La Salle's tennis history, when practice started in mid-March.

Since La Salle finished with a disappointing 1-12 record a year ago, things are definitely looking up, especially since Condon is blessed with the depth that has been lacking so often in the past.

GILLESPIE RENOMINATED

The Alumni Association Board of Directors took unprecedented action at its March 14 meeting when it endorsed James I. Gillespie, '55 for a second term as alumni president without naming another candidate.

The Board acts as a nominating committee to select a slate for the alumni to vote on in the annual balloting for officers. Gillespie, therefore, stands unopposed for re-election to the association's highest office.

Gillespie is a certified public accountant at Jenkins, Fetterof and Company. He lives in the West Oak Lane section of Philadelphia with his wife and their three children.

Candidates nominated for Vice-President were: Bernard Burns, '60, James Covello, '52, and John J. Lombard, Jr., Esq., '56.

Nominated for Treasurer were Charles Agnew, '61 and the incumbent James McCarthy, '14.
