President of Keystone Computer Associates

Dinner, Reception and Dancing
Half past six in the evening
Saturday, the 20th day of March 2004

Normandy Farm
Blue Bell, Pennsylvania
Invitations to follow in January 2004

For more information, please contact Felicia Gordon Richman: gordon@lasalle.edu or 215.951.1880.

The Charter Dinner celebrates the founding of La Salle College on March 20, 1863 and pays tribute to the generations of Christian Brothers, laypersons, and clergy whose dedication has made La Salle University the prominent institution that it is today.

Since its founding, La Salle has played a leadership role in Philadelphia as an educational institution and as a responsible corporate citizen. It is, therefore, quite fitting that the University recognize those individuals who have displayed outstanding leadership in the corporate, civic, governmental, or religious communities that shape the quality of life in this region. By joining the Charter Dinner with the presentation of the 12th La Salle University Leadership Award, we have an opportunity to celebrate La Salle's history and to honor one of those individuals whose contributions have made a critical difference to our community.

Dear Friends of La Salle:

On behalf of the University, and especially our students, I want to offer my heartfelt thanks to our benefactors. The generosity of the thousands of La Salle’s supporters, recognized in this report, certainly unites all of you with our critical mission of preparing students for personal growth, professional advancement, and service to society.

As we celebrate La Salle’s 140th anniversary year, the University community feels a special sense of gratitude for your ongoing support and trust. We are especially thankful that, despite a tough economy, unrestricted contributions to the Annual Fund were strong and surpassed the prior year’s mark.

Though this report can highlight only a few of the many successes made possible by your investments in La Salle, please be assured that all of us on campus see and appreciate the very positive impact of your loyal support every day.

With your help, La Salle continues to commit significant resources to develop innovative academic programs that prepare students for the challenges of contemporary society. At Commencement in May, I had the great pleasure of awarding bachelor’s degrees to the first graduates of one such program, Integrated Science, Business, and Technology (ISBT). Along with Digital Arts and Speech-Language-Hearing Science, ISBT is a good example of recent program development success at La Salle, all attracting solid enrollment from students with strong credentials. During the year, we also expanded opportunities for international study, with programs in Galway and Rome for our undergraduates. These innovations build on the already strong foundation of academic excellence at La Salle—just one example of which is our well-respected Communication Department, which celebrates its 25th anniversary this year.

At the same time, we continue the Lasallian commitment to excellent teaching and true concern for students, both in and out of the classroom. This is in keeping with the over 300-year-old tradition of the Christian Brothers, to which the University remains proudly faithful. Our commitment to students is reflected in La Salle’s stellar freshman-to-sophomore retention rate of 87 percent, well above the 72 percent national average.

The reputation of our academic programs and the values handed down to us by St. John Baptist de La Salle are clearly reflected in our strong application and enrollment trends. For the fifth straight year, freshman applications have set a record, exceeding 4,500. Our average SAT score is up by 19 points, and is the highest in La Salle’s history. Full-time enrollment has reached 5,937, the highest since 1991.

As we strive to extend these accomplishments, La Salle will benefit from a new, five-year Strategic Plan, developed by the University community and endorsed this past spring by the Board of Trustees.

So, as we celebrate La Salle’s 140th anniversary, we have much for which to be thankful, including great prospects for the future. But La Salle cannot realize its full potential as a resource for our students and society without increased involvement and support from loyal friends, especially our alumni.

I look forward to working with you and many new supporters to help the University fulfill its mission.

Many thanks, again, for your generosity to La Salle.

Sincerely,

Brother Michael

Michael J. McGinniss, F.S.C., ’70
President, La Salle University

26 Honor Roll of Donors 2002 - 2003
Benjamin D. Bernstein
June 24, 1907 — May 1, 2003

Benjamin D. Bernstein, a philanthropic art collector and founder of a prosperous moving and storage company in Philadelphia, died on May 1, 1984. Bernstein came from humble beginnings. He dropped out of school in the eighth grade to help support his family.

In 1929, Bernstein married Evelyn Glauser. Shortly after, she helped Bernstein set up a business of his own which became Quaker Moving & Storage Co. As his business was growing, Bernstein traveled extensively and developed a love of art and collecting. He began supporting young artists by purchasing their work. He surrounded himself with modern and contemporary paintings, drawings, prints, and sculptures. As his collection grew, Bernstein gave hundreds of works of art to colleges, institutions, and museums.

"Ben donated upwards of 100 paintings, prints, and sculptures to our Art Museum," said Brother Daniel Burke, F.S.C., La Salle University Art Museum founder and Director. "He would say to me, 'Come down and tell me what you want.' His house was filled with such wonderful things." In recognition of his generosity, the Art Museum's 20th Century Gallery bears Bernstein's name.

In addition to donating works of art, Bernstein set up and periodically added to an acquisition fund enabling the Art Museum to purchase other works.

"Ben set up the fund in addition to what he donated, and we would use it to buy paintings from all periods," explained Br. Daniel. "Ben meant so much to the Art Museum as a donor and passionate collector. On top of that, he was a philosopher of life, very wise and witty. He had a very generous heart."

Bernstein is survived by a daughter, Robin; brothers Edward and Stanley; and 18 nieces and nephews.
Salle’s Dearest Friends

Joseph F. Flubacher, ’35
January 4, 1914 - June 23, 2003

Joseph F. Flubacher, a legendary economics teacher at La Salle University for 50 years, died June 23 of congestive heart failure at Cooper Medical Center in Camden, N.J., at the age of 89.

A 1935 graduate of La Salle with a degree in economics, Flubacher worked at La Salle as the president’s secretary while earning a master’s degree at Temple University. He joined La Salle’s economics faculty in 1938, and later earned an Ed D. in economics from Temple. He retired from teaching in May of 1988, and was awarded Professor Emeritus status. For many years afterward, he visited the campus weekly, and was involved with Sigma Phi Lambda fraternity.

“Joseph Flubacher was a true ‘icon’ of La Salle University,” said Brother Michael J. McGinniss, F.S.C., ’70, President of the University. “He personified the discipline of economics for thousands of La Salle alumni over a lengthy, successful career as a teacher and department chairperson. He championed the Catholic and Lasallian concern for human dignity and social justice by paying particular attention to the tradition of papal social teaching initiated by Pope Leo XIII in 1891, and continued in our time by Pope John Paul II. He modeled those great principles in everyday life in all his dealings with his students and his colleagues in the faculty, staff, and administration.”

“To his very last days, he maintained an active interest in his beloved La Salle and its students, particularly those in the Sigma Phi Lambda Fraternity, of which he was a member. The Christian Brothers honored Joe’s lifetime of commitment to La Salle by making him an affiliated member of their religious order. Joe Flubacher gave his life to La Salle University and we are forever indebted to him. For myself, I am very proud to have known him as my teacher of freshman economics, my faculty colleague, my friend, and fellow Lasallian,” said Br. Michael.

In 1998, he received the Signum Fidei medal from La Salle’s Alumni Association. The award, which takes its name from the motto of the Christian Brothers, Sign of Faith, is given annually to a person who has made a contribution to society. In 2000, Flubacher received an honorary doctorate from the University.

In 1996, The University started a scholarship in his name, given annually to a senior economics major. Flubacher also received the Lindback Distinguished Teaching Award at La Salle.

A bachelor, Flubacher is survived by a niece, Rosemary A. Gallagher, a nephew, James E. Gallagher—both of whom graduated from La Salle—and Gallagher’s wife, Christine.

Left: Dr. Joseph Flubacher, ’35 (seated), made an impression on former economics student David F. Ponce, ’66 (right), who chose to honor his mentor in 1996 by founding the Flubacher Scholarship to support economics students at La Salle, including Kleber N. Nica, ’93 (back center).

Living a Dream

Iya La Bunka, '80, always knew she wanted to work in television or film.

Today, as the Vice President of Productions for Walt Disney Studios, La Bunka is living her dream.

In truth, she has been living her dream ever since she moved out to the Golden State in 1979—and it all started here at La Salle University.

"Through La Salle, I got an internship at Channel 10 (an NBC News affiliate), and it was a phenomenal opportunity for me. It was fascinating, and I absorbed everything," said La Bunka, whose father, Mikoslav La Bunka, was a history professor at La Salle for 25 years.

When she arrived in California, La Bunka started out on the sets of independent films working with Roger Corman, a pioneer in the independent film industry.

By 1997, however, La Bunka was ready to make the move to a studio. She began working for Disney as an executive production manager.

Six years and a couple of promotions later, La Bunka is the Vice President of Productions at Disney and loving it.

Since then, she has worked on several major blockbusters such as all three M. Night Shyamalan movies (The Sixth Sense, Unbreakable, and Signs) and Spike Lee’s Summer of Sam and 25th Hour.

"Once a film gets a green light, it is my job to make sure everything runs smoothly. I act as the interface between the filmmakers and the studio. It is a balancing act and a challenge which takes a great deal of diplomacy, but in the end when the finished product is delivered, we hopefully have a great film," La Bunka said.

"I am in a great place right now," she said. "I work in a positive and inspiring atmosphere with the best there is in the business and that is enormously satisfying."

The photograph shown to the right (of Philadelphia’s Kimmel Center for Performing Arts) was taken by La Salle alumnus John McGrail, ’69, and used as the cover of a large format book on the city of Philadelphia. The book, written by Kurt R. Nifan and produced in cooperation with the Greater Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, was published in 2002 by Community Communications, Inc. McGrail is the feature photographer in this book and a similar one produced by CCI in 1997, titled, Philadelphia: World Class!

In the book’s chapter on education, McGrail’s photos of La Salle’s campus are featured in a two-page spread on the University. McGrail generously donated these photos and others to his alma mater as a gift-in-kind. Several are featured on the pages of this issue.

A professional photographer for nearly 30 years, McGrail’s work has appeared in such magazines as Life, Time, Fortune, Business Week, Discover, Smithsonian, and People, and has been published in more than 80 countries. He specializes in aerial, historical, maritime/nautical, and panoramic photography.

A native Philadelphian, McGrail said his proudest accomplishment is the work he has done to represent the city where he grew up. “I have an extensive file of historic Philadelphia images that I get constant calls for. It is a place that I certainly treasure, and I think I’ve done a pretty good job of representing it to the world,” he said.

McGrail and his family currently reside in Bucks County. He can be contacted through his Web site at www.johnmcgrail.com.
