The Charter Dinner celebrates the founding of La Salle College on March 20, 1863, and pays tribute to the generations of Christian Brothers, laypersons, and clergy whose dedication has made La Salle University the prominent institution that it is today. Each year, La Salle bestows the Leadership Award on an individual who has displayed outstanding leadership in the corporate, civic, governmental, or religious communities that shape the quality of life in this region.

Since its inception, the Charter Dinner and La Salle University Leadership Award Ceremony have raised over $1.7 million. This year’s dinner and ceremony will continue to enhance the University’s Scholarship Fund, thereby benefiting future generations of La Salle students.
Shoulder to Shoulder for the Future

"From the very start [the Christian Brothers] have understood that...education must equip youth with a genuine and efficient professional training and the means of making a living. And they have understood at the same time that the formation of the soul and the intellect, the bringing up of a human being as human, remains the highest and indispensable aim of education."

Jacques Maritan, French philosopher. Writing in the 1950s about the Lasallian tradition

On September 12, 2004, La Salle publicly launched Shoulder to Shoulder: Securing the Future, the most ambitious fundraising effort in the University's history. This major gifts initiative is designed to bring the La Salle Community together in support of two key projects that, once realized, will sustain the University in the new century: funding the construction of a new science and technology facility, and strengthening the University's endowment.

The two goals of Shoulder to Shoulder have been carefully selected to capitalize on the momentum generated by new leadership and new programs at the University. They offer new opportunities for involvement for the entire La Salle community to help secure its future.

Strengthening La Salle Together, Shoulder to Shoulder

"Shoulder to Shoulder is the way many great things in this country have gotten accomplished," noted James J. Lynch, '71, Chair of the La Salle University Board of Trustees. "The theme of this fundraising effort was chosen specifically to reinforce the values at the heart of what will make this campaign a success: hardworking people—working together—to secure the future for La Salle."

Through Shoulder to Shoulder, the University is now calling upon those who have benefited from the Lasallian educational experience to support La Salle as it works toward achieving its goals and creating important resources to support future learning.

J. Hugh Devlin, '64, Chair of Shoulder to Shoulder, and Brother Michael J. McGinniss, F.S.C., Ph.D., '70
“I have always admired the Brothers and their commitment to providing a Catholic education to good students of modest means, so that they can make their way in the world and also make the world a better place,” remarked J. Hugh Devlin, '64, Chair of Shoulder to Shoulder. “It is my belief that this foundation of Christian Brothers values—rooted in connectedness and giving back—will inspire the alumni community to stand together to support the mission of La Salle through this important initiative.”

“Great universities are great because their alumni make them so,” added Brother Michael J. McGinniss, F.S.C., Ph.D., '70, President of La Salle University. “It is impossible for me to express how humbled I am to be standing here before you as President of this University and my deep gratitude to all who have given so generously to this campaign.

“I look forward to continuing to extend the University’s network of association and to successfully completing this campaign, upon which, we—working together, Shoulder to Shoulder—will build the future of La Salle.”

Providing Innovative Learning Resources

La Salle’s mission aims at preparing students for informed service and progressive leadership in their communities, and science and technology skills are among the most sought after in today’s employment marketplace. The University’s well-earned reputation for preparing graduates to join the medical, nursing, education, science, and business professions will be enhanced by building a new science and technology facility (see architect’s rendering above).

Today, science and technology touch many disciplines and influence many kinds of careers. Preparing men and women for rewarding professional lives demands a new kind of learning environment that recognizes this fact. Through this innovative facility, La Salle is reaffirming its commitment to addressing the new needs of science and technology in all academic areas—from the arts and sciences to nursing and business.

This new facility will feature an open floor plan designed especially to encourage collaboration and cross-disciplinary learning. This is the way modern science—and business—gets done, and it’s the kind of learning environment La Salle students need. Such innovative programs as Integrated Science, Business, and Technology (ISBT), Digital Arts and Multimedia Design (DArt), the E-Commerce Institute, and majors in information technology are helping drive enrollment. Along with the traditional sciences, nursing, and business, such programs will flourish and grow in the new science and technology facility.

Strengthening the Endowment

St. La Salle and the Christian Brothers began as teachers among the working poor of 17th-century France. For some 300 years, a Christian Brothers education has meant helping students of all financial means build successful lives on an ethical foundation based on faith.

La Salle continues this tradition, offering education that balances a need for both personal and professional fulfillment to the widest possible range of students.
Today, more than 90 percent of students attend the University with some form of merit- and need-based financial aid. The ability to offer a La Salle education to every student of academic merit remains central to the University’s mission, and serves as both a challenge and an opportunity for every member of the La Salle community.

La Salle must strengthen its endowment to continue to attract the best and brightest students, regardless of their financial background. A robust endowment is also one of the strongest statements of commitment to the value of a Christian Brothers education in the Lasallian tradition.

Together for the Future of La Salle

As La Salle works to enhance its profile as a great University, these strategic goals have been established to secure critical resources that will enhance academic programs and meet student needs. They present opportunities for involvement for the entire La Salle community to work together—Shoulder to Shoulder—to secure La Salle’s future.

President's Report
2003-2004

Dear Friends of La Salle:

On behalf of the entire La Salle community, I want to express my sincere gratitude to all our benefactors. Through this report, I am delighted to recognize your generosity and sustained encouragement in fulfillment of our mission.

With your support, the University continues to be a dynamic educational community shaped by traditional Catholic and Lasallian values.

Our identity is firmly rooted in a deep respect for each individual, a belief that intellectual and spiritual development go hand in hand, a passion for creative teaching and learning, and that education should be useful—for personal growth, professional advancement, and service to others.

These beliefs have served as guideposts as we developed and continue to carry out the University’s Strategic Plan. What follows are highlights of our progress during the past year.

One such highlight warrants special attention, which it has by way of the article that precedes this letter: “Shoulder to Shoulder for the Future,” I encourage you to read this account of this significant fundraising initiative, whose goal is to raise $25 million for the construction of a new science and technology building and the strengthening of the University’s endowment. To date, the University has raised $13.7 million towards that goal. We are especially grateful to those who already have given their support, and we encourage others to join in this worthwhile cause.

As I look to the future, I see La Salle continuing to build on the positive momentum of recent years, inspired by the committed leadership of our Board of Trustees. We pray that you will remain our partners in our endeavors. Thank you again for your generosity to La Salle and to our students.

Sincerely yours,

Highlights of the Year

Enhancing Our Intellectual and Spiritual Life

The strength of the University’s curriculum is assured in part by meeting, or exceeding, the rigorous standards of accreditation. This year, two of our newer programs earned their accreditations: Speech-Language Pathology by the American Speech-Language Hearing Association, and the doctoral program in Psychology (Psy.D.) by the American Psychological Association. In addition, our School of Nursing’s baccalaureate and master’s degree programs were recently reaccredited by the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education for 10 years, the maximum accreditation allowed for an institution.

Further, La Salle has embarked on its self-study for reaccreditation by the Middle States Association, an institution-wide commitment for ongoing assessment and improvement.

The quality of our faculty continues to be one of La Salle’s greatest assets. Our faculty has a passion for teaching and mentoring that touches our students’ hearts and spirits as well as their minds. Working with the Faculty Senate, the Provost’s Office has undertaken initiatives to provide even greater support to our
The University has continued its efforts to cultivate Catholic and Lasallian values in the curriculum, programs, and institutional culture. The faculty and administrators who are participating in the Lasallian Leadership Institute, a three-year national leadership program of the Christian Brothers, are setting the example.

Effectively Communicating Our Distinct Identity

Building on the market research commissioned two years ago, which helped to define the University, La Salle has focused its efforts to communicate this identity. The La Salle community’s values and approaches form our brand and distinct identity. It is the feeling that should come to mind when people hear the name of La Salle University.
The past year has seen the gradual introduction of La Salle’s graphic identity. The new University logo began to appear on publications, in advertising, on banners around the campus, and on University vehicles. The new tagline, “Never stop exploring,” has been introduced in printed materials and in radio commercials. The new athletics logo has proven popular with students for clothing and accessories.

While the consistency of our graphic identity is important to establishing our brand, communication of the essence of La Salle, as described by our positioning statement and key messages and language, is also critical. The University incorporates these messages at every appropriate opportunity. Moreover, the University is committed to having all in the campus community “live” the brand.

Investing in Our Future

The University’s commitment to making the personal, communal, and financial investments needed for future success is very evident this year. The $25 million Shoulder to Shoulder: Securing the Future initiative (see preceding article) is testimony to the kind of investment our alumni are willing to make in La Salle. On campus, the most visible sign of investment is the construction of the new $26 million residence and dining facility on South Campus.

As the Honor Roll section attests, financial support for the University continues to grow. Total giving for the year approached $9.2 million. The Annual Fund increased for the third year in a row, highlighted by a nearly nine percent increase in participation in the past year. Funding from grants in the 2004 fiscal year—$5.6 million—was the highest single yearly total for La Salle. The National Science Foundation’s five-year $12.5 million grant to a La Salle-led partnership to improve mathematics and science education in the region contributed greatly.

Continued investment in and use of technology remains a priority. This year witnessed the launch of a portal within the University’s Web site for internal communications. Also, the foundation has been laid for campus-wide wireless Internet access.

Enhancing the Quality of Life in Our Community

La Salle’s commitment to the community may have been symbolized by the establishment, last year, of the position of Director of Community and Economic Development, but our actions and influences are longstanding and significant. The University continues to be a major economic contributor and a model of community outreach and partnering.

Our Nonprofit Center helps area nonprofit organizations govern themselves to fulfill their missions; the Neighborhood Nursing Center offers myriad health services to local residents; the University provides scholarships specifically for students from the community; La Salle offers educational programs and services for students of area public and private schools; University students volunteer more than 100,000 hours annually for community service projects; University facilities are made available and are well utilized by neighbors and local groups.

Special efforts this year have focused on converting 20th Street between Olney and Belfield avenues into a one-way street, resulting in fewer accidents. Also, La Salle representatives met more frequently with local residents to partner in neighborhood quality of life issues.

Cultivating Partnerships with Alumni

Major steps have been taken to develop the alumni relations program. Five new clubs were added in the past year, and 35 events were held in 16 cities nationwide. Attendance at alumni events included increases of 25 percent at Reunion and 200 percent at Homecoming. On-line services on the Web site have been expanded, and an alumni portal was launched. The alumni e-mail database has been increased to more than 10,000.

A new Alumni Careers Committee has been charged with enhancing career networking programs. An Alumni Student Affairs Committee was created to further develop alumni relations with current students, and alumni have volunteered for everything from cleaning up nearby Fairmount Park to helping recruit prospective students.

Assistant Professor Joseph P. Cairo, ’60, Economics Teacher for 40 Years, Dies at 66

Joseph P. Cairo, ’60, who inspired economics students at La Salle for 40 years, died July 11 at his home in Ambler, Pa. He had been battling multiple myeloma for several years. Cairo was 66.

A graduate of La Salle College High School and La Salle College, Cairo earned a master’s in economics from the University of Pennsylvania and joined La Salle’s economics faculty in 1963. In 1967, he received the Lindback Distinguished Teaching Award.

“His whole adult life was dedicated to La Salle,” said his son, Matthew Cairo. “He loved teaching young students. His favorite classes were the introductory classes because he got to really teach the students what was most fundamental to the study of economics.”

“He was a wonderful guy and a tremendous teacher,” said Joseph P. Mooney, Ph.D., ’49, Professor Emeritus of Economics. “His students loved him. He had tremendous energy. I don’t think anybody had more energy in the classroom, and that’s what kept him going. It was very courageous of him to keep going like that for these past few years.”

Mooney said Cairo would get so caught up in his teaching that his courses would run past the allotted time, and other teachers and students would have to stand outside until he had finished. “He’d say, ‘Just one more thing,’” and go on for 10 more minutes,” Mooney said.

“My father loved the way the Christian Brothers taught, their philosophy about education, and that was what made it a natural for him to teach at La Salle,” Matthew Cairo said. He said his father was also an avid collector of books about a wide variety of topics that interested him. “I’d guess there are about 10,000 books in his house,” he said. Cairo earned a second M.A. in English from Temple University.

Cairo married his wife, Paula, in 1973. In addition to Matthew, they have another son, Joseph K. Cairo, and a daughter, Julia.
