A continuation of La Salle's celebration of the life of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr
Dear Colleagues,

When we created the Web site for the Office of the Provost (www.lasalle.edu/provost) this past fall, a goal was to provide a place where the scholarly and creative accomplishments of our faculty and students could be highlighted and celebrated. We need your help to begin making that goal a reality.

Beginning in February 2003 the Web site will include a page (ultimately pages) devoted to news about faculty accomplishments. While initially these items will simply be listed by category, eventually we plan to create featured areas of the site that will focus on particular projects or achievements and include relevant photos, Web links, multimedia or other supporting materials. We also will initiate this project by including information only on faculty projects, though it is our hope to expand the site to include student research within the coming academic year.

To get started, we are asking that all faculty (full- and part-time) submit information on recent projects and accomplishments according to the guidelines listed below. Information received by January 22 will be included in the first version of this site – the site will be updated three times a year and newly received information will be added accordingly (and previously displayed information removed). We are asking faculty to provide us with information about their recent (since 9/1/02) accomplishments in any of the following areas:

- conference papers
- books and other publications
- research leave or sabbatical projects
- awards and grants
- professional leadership activities (such as chairing a conference session, serving as an officer of a professional association, or editing a journal)

Please forward information about your accomplishments – your name, department, and a brief description of the work (include relevant publication or presentation information and an abstract if applicable) – to Sabrina DeTurk, Assistant Provost for Learning Support and Faculty Development, no later than January 22. Please submit information by email (deturk@lasalle.edu) in the body of an email message or as an attached Microsoft Word document. Department chairs may wish to coordinate an effort to gather information from all faculty in their departments and submit a single document.

Thank you for your participation in this new initiative and we look forward to creating a vibrant and engaging display of your achievements.

Brighter Lighting Added On and Off La Salle Campus

During the semester break, La Salle made significant upgrades to lighting fixtures on and off-campus, making the campus brighter with the goal of making it safer.

Responding to a Student Government Association (SGA) initiative, the offices of Business Affairs, Physical Plant and Security and Safety worked together to get the project done.

According to Michael Lopacki, Director of Physical Facilities at La Salle, 18 new lighting fixtures were installed, and 12 existing light fixtures were upgraded to provide more illumination. All of the new or upgraded lights use a metal halide bulb, which is about twice as bright as the mercury vapor lights that were previously used.

Six new lights were attached to existing PECO Energy light poles along Olney Avenue. The PECO lights face towards the street, while the new lights face the sidewalks, making the street brighter. La Salle paid for the fixtures and upgrades while the work was done by PECO crews.

Among the improvements were six new lights added at the north end of the campus at Olney Avenue (before it becomes Chew Avenue), where a La Salle residence hall, Teresa Court, and the Good Shepherd Parking lot are situated. Also, new lights were added in front of the Manor Apartment Buildings, on the west side of Olney Avenue near 18th Street, where the University leases several towers for student housing.

Four new lighting fixtures were added and five existing lights were upgraded on the east side of 20th Street from Olney Avenue to Belfield Avenue, which borders McCarthy Stadium and where many commuter students park cars.

Upgraded lighting was also done at the entrances to a University residence hall and dining hall on Olney Avenue, and along the quad region in the center of campus, which abuts the Student Union Building.

A new light fixture with the brighter bulb has been installed at a new entrance to the campus at Clarkson and Wister Streets.

While upgrading the university’s campus lighting was being implemented in stages, said Lopacki, a student audit that emphasized the students’ perceptions of campus safety concerns “accelerated” the process. (more)
SGA leaders presented a safety report they had prepared to David Fleming, La Salle’s Vice President for Business Affairs, in early November. A few weeks later, Fleming, Lopacki, Director of Security and Safety Robert Levins, Assistant Director of Safety and Security John Gallagher and Dean of Students Joseph Cicala met with student leaders to discuss concerns including the campus area’s lighting. In early December, the University began adding the new and upgraded existing fixtures.

“I was very impressed with how quickly it was done,” said Ricky Palladino, President of SGA. “By the time we came back from break (in mid-January) it was already finished.”

Bill Wiegmann, SGA Executive Vice President, said, “It was amazing to come back and see those pole lights. It’s hard to explain how good it looks. It’s really noticeable. I know that students will feel safer.”

Career Options for Women in Technology Disciplines

Sponsored by La Salle University and Greater Philadelphia First Partners, SCT and Independence Blue Cross

Why are so few women involved in technology?

Are you uncertain about your future?

Are you confused about choosing a major?

To help you answer these questions and others related to career options and technology disciplines, we are sponsoring two workshops involving female general managers, vice-presidents and senior directors.

SCT will host the panel on Thursday, January 23, 2003 from 12:30-1:50 in Olney 100.

Independence Blue Cross will be host the panel on Monday, January 27, 2003 from 3:00-4:30 in Olney 100.

The panels will discuss strategies to move forward with career opportunities in technical areas. There will be an opportunity to network with the panel members after the discussion. So please join us for these discussions.

To register for either or both panels, please RSVP to mccoey@lasalle.edu.
