Dear La Salle Students and Parents:

As La Salle prepares to mark its 140th anniversary with a Charter Day celebration on March 20, I want to send you a special note of thanks. I greatly appreciate the trust you have placed in our University to provide an educational experience that goes well beyond preparing students for meaningful careers and success in graduate studies. You have shown your faith in La Salle’s commitment to provide our graduates with the skills needed to have a positive impact on the social, political, professional and moral challenges of contemporary society.

As a Christian Brother, a La Salle professor, an alumnus and the University’s president, I am inspired and gratified by your vote of confidence. In response, I renew my own commitment to making sure that La Salle’s academic programs, student services, and state-of-the-art technology meet your needs.

To ensure a high quality education, La Salle continues to focus on attracting and retaining excellent faculty with a passion for teaching and mentoring, who touch our students’ hearts and spirits as well as their minds. La Salle prides itself in creating a community that appreciates the multiple ways of learning, ranging from the seminar room to hands-on, experiential learning, like internships, to active participation in on-campus organizations. In fact, La Salle is one of the few institutions where academic deans and senior student affairs administrators work under the office of the Provost to ensure a high degree of continuity and quality in our students’ experience in both academic and non-academic campus life. One result, we believe, is the University’s stellar freshman-to-sophomore retention rate—87 percent, which is significantly better than the 72 percent national average.

When you consider the cost of our commitment to excellence and add to it the ongoing need to maintain and upgrade the University’s facilities, you can see that the overall expense of education at La Salle will necessarily increase over time. However, you can be certain that I remain dedicated to keeping such increases as low as possible. Please refer to the enclosure for the tuition and fee schedule for the 2003-2004 academic year.

As you may know, tuition does not cover the full cost of educating our students. To help close the gap, we rely on the generosity of our alumni and friends, as well as on the support of private foundations and government grant programs. Knowing and appreciating the many sacrifices you make to pay for a La Salle education, I will continue to focus on attracting additional support from these sources.

Thank you, again, for the confidence you have placed in La Salle University.

Sincerely,

Michael J. McGinniss, F.S.C.
President

TO: The La Salle University Community

FROM: Current & Former Participants in The Lasallian Leadership Institute

There are now nine members of the University community who have completed a program known as “LLI,” the Lasallian Leadership Institute. We are pleased to know that the University will again sponsor six additional members of the La Salle community in the next three-year training cycle. New participants in the program are Dave Jones, Anna Allen, Mike Smith, Brother John Kane, Jim Gulick and Mike Wisniewski. We think this is a positive step, what the business world might call “a good investment.”

The designers of the LLI wanted to create a formation program that would provide a common training experience for those who participate in the Lasallian educational mission. By doing so, they felt that they would help preserve that mission and provide opportunities for participants to influence the Lasallian character of their respective institutions. As “graduates” of the program, we want to give more than lip service to the goal of “influencing the Lasallian character of our respective institutions.” The question is, what should we do.

Truthfully, we are not completely sure what form our influence should take. Do we take a leadership role to help build and sustain community spirit, welcome new members, explain and celebrate the Lasallian heritage, reach out to help the poor? We know so much is now being done in all of these areas, so before we answer our first question, we thought we ought to start with an inventory of sorts. As we talked about examples of “things Lasallian”, we quickly concluded that we should ask you.

Our purpose in writing, then, is to ask you to help us with such a list, in a sense, to get our bearings. We would like to know of specific programs, activities, events, administrative procedures, and so on, that you see as concrete examples of our Lasallian heritage and values. What do you see in your life on campus that you believe mirrors the Lasallian character of the University? To help you to organize your thoughts, we have come up with five broad categories, ways of thinking about the issue. On the attached page, is a very brief statement of the characteristics of a Lasallian school and then five areas to organize your response. No need to identify yourself on the response form if you prefer to remain anonymous.

We know how busy you are, so we very much appreciate any help you can give us. Please return completed responses to Ray Ricci.

The Diplomat-In-Residence Program

Presents

The Ven. Palden Gyatso

Wednesday, April 9
1 pm
Dan Rodden Theatre

Co-sponsored with the Department of Religion

Palden Gyatso was born in 1933 and raised in a small Tibetan village. At the age of eighteen, he became an ordained Buddhist monk at one of Tibet's most famous monasteries, Drepung Monastery. In 1959, when Communist China invaded Tibet, thousands of Tibetans who did not approve of the brutal occupation of their country were arrested and put in prison. Palden Gyatso was jailed by the Chinese authorities for being a "reactionary element."

Palden Gyatso spent most of the next 33 years in Chinese prison. Every time he would finish serving one of his long sentences, he would be re-arrested for taking part in political activities opposing the Chinese occupation. While in prison, Palden Gyatso endured violent physical and psychological torture. The Chinese authorities tried every means possible to break his spirit of resistance and his will to continue fighting for Tibetan freedom. He was beaten, shocked with electric cattle prods, and suspended from the ceiling above a burning fire.

Palden Gyatso never gave up his determination to fight for his country's freedom. In 1992, when he finally finished his last prison sentence, Palden Gyatso managed to escape to India, carrying with him some of torture instruments that had been used on him. Since his escape, he has traveled the world speaking to people about his horrendous experiences in jail and his continued mission to expose the injustice of the Chinese occupation of Tibet. He has testified in front of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights and the US Congress. Palden Gyatso is also the author of "The Autobiography of a Tibetan Monk" and "Fire Under the Snow: Testimony of a Tibetan Prisoner."

The Social Work Program is offering the following electives in Fall 2003

SWK 376A: Homelessness—How, Why?
Mondays, 6:15-8:55 p.m.
Bonni Zetick, Ph.D.

This course will examine homelessness—who is homeless, why people are homeless in contemporary society, barriers that people experience in finding a home, and how these barriers can be addressed. The historical condition of homelessness, particularly in the 20th Century, will be examined. We will listen to homeless people themselves as they express their needs and challenges. Particular attention will be paid to the plight of children who are homeless.

SWK 370: Working with Drug and Alcohol Dependent Persons
Monday & Wednesday, 2:00 – 3:15 p.m.
Donna Fiedler, Ph.D.

This is a two-pronged course. First, it will be necessary to understand the addictive nature of drugs and alcohol and to understand which drugs are addictive. The second aspect of the course will explore the dynamics of addicted persons and methods that are currently proven to be effective in the treatment of drug and alcohol dependencies.

This is an excellent elective for psychology, nursing, sociology, criminal justice, social work majors, and anyone interested in addictions.

SWK 350: Loss & Grief
Tuesdays & Thursdays, 11:00 – 12:15 P.M.
Janine Mariscotti, MSW, LCSW

This course is designed for undergraduate students who are interested in learning about the processes of attachment, loss, and grieving. The course explores loss, in life and in preparation for death, addressing both acceptable and disenfranchised loss and grief. Students will increase awareness of their personal responses to loss, will gain a professional understanding of normal and complicated grief, and will learn ways to facilitate healthy grief work.

What other students have said about the course

"It changed positively the way I feel about life and death."

"Addresses a difficult subject in a very calming and comforting manner."

"...taught us much about loss and grief while we discovered ourselves."

Subject: Baseball and Campus Parking

Spring is here and once again baseball season is upon us.

With baseball season in full swing, those parking on main campus by the baseball field, behind the Student Union building or the softball field at Good Shepherd, have the risk of damage to their cars from baseballs during games and practices; especially in the afternoons when practices and games are held.

Please heed the notices posted in the aforementioned area.

Thank you.
